

New GC street superintendent, alderman

WALTER MILTON
New alderman

Granite City will have a new street superintendent Feb. 1 — Alderman Mac Warfield — and a new Sixth Ward alderman — Walter Milton, Mayor Paul Schuler told the Press-Record yesterday.

Confirming rumors that Warfield was about to be named the street superintendent and that Milton would be appointed to fill Warfield's seat on the city council, the mayor stated, "I think it's the right move."

"Mac (Warfield), I think, has done a good job as alderman and he has a family tradition of street superintendent through his father, William 'Bill' Warfield, who was a well-respected superintendent for many years and who did a good job," Schuler stated. "The older Warfield, now a resident of a nursing home in Edwardsville, served the public here for 16 years."

The mayor also noted that Milton has proven his interest and dedication in this area, in many capacities, over the years.

"Walter's been active in civic affairs for some time. Both through Pepsi-Cola and on his own, he has done a lot for this area. In Rotary and in the boys' and girls' programs and by serving on the housing authority and now as a park commissioner. He is well-qualified to do the job," Schuler noted.

Milton told the Press-Record yesterday that he will accept and he probably will resign his position on the Granite City Park Board when he becomes an alderman. "Why try to control both. It should be the duty of someone else to serve in that position (park board)," Milton said. He has served by appointment on the park board since July, 1981, filling the vacancy created when David Nolan, administrative aide for Mayor Paul Schuler, resigned the board.

Schuler said that City Clerk Robert W. Stevens will probably be asked to swear in the new street superintendent and alderman at Tuesday night's regular city council meeting. The council will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the township hall at 21st Street and Delmar Avenue.

Milton said he would be present at that meeting. Warfield was not available for comment.

Both appointees previously sought the offices to which they are being appointed and were unsuccessful.

Warfield ran for street superintendent in 1975 and was defeated by incumbent Lionel Portell. Portell announced last month that he is leaving Granite City and has become the works manager for St. Peters, Mo.

Warfield, 49, is expected to retire from Granite City Steel, where he has worked about 31 years, to accept the street superintendent's post. He has not officially said whether he will accept the street post, but Schuler indicated he is confident Warfield will accept.

A native Granite Cityan, Warfield served in the Navy for four years, from 1951 to 1955, during the Korean War. He is a member of United Steelworkers of America. He and his wife, Betty, are members of St. John's Lutheran Church.

He has served as alderman since the spring of 1979 and was the Democratic precinct committeeman in Precinct 37 before being elected an alderman.

Milton, 47, was appointed by Governor James Thompson to the 21-member Illinois Recreation Council in August, 1979, and continues to serve on that group, as well as on the park board. The council advises the governor, the director of the department of Business and Economic Development, the director of the Department of Conservation and the General Assembly on recreational development in the state.

Milton is vice-president-marketing for the Southern Division of Pepsi-Cola Alton Bottling, Inc.

He is a past president of the Granite City Rotary Club, a past director of the Granite City Jaycees, served four years on the Citizens' Advisory Committee for the Granite City School District, is a past chairman of the Rotary's budget committee for community affairs, is a former director of the Tri-Cities area Chamber of Commerce and was a member of the board of the Granite City Housing Authority.

He currently is chairman of the Cooperative Education Advisory Council and serves on the Chamber's highway and traffic committee and Pride Committee.

He is a graduate of the Pepsi-Cola Management Institute and has a certificate of business administration from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

He and his wife, Peggy, reside at 3214 Wabash Ave., and have five children.

Opposition to cable TV hike

Granite City officials and representatives of South-Western Cable TV have different visions of exactly what types of services the company is providing and what charges seem equitable for those services.

Mayor Paul Schuler told four South-Western staff members Tuesday that serious issues in the cable's relationship with the city include a 38-percent senior citizen rate hike, interruptions in reception and a lack of an operating local access channel after two years of waiting.

The mayor and two members of the Granite City Council Finance Committee, Aldermen Paul Ray Bowler and Sam Whitmer, took the opportunity to bring up grievances in a meeting set to discuss South-Western's request for a one dollar raise in its basic service charge.

Keith Cripps, vice-president in charge of operations, disagreed with the mayor's and Bowler's contention that poor reception has been a frequent problem. Cripps said "no major outages" have occurred since August.

The raise in senior citizens' rates from $14 to $19 for those who receive Home Box Office (HBO) and The Movie Channel was a natural result of discontinuation of a discount by the suppliers of these programs.

At the request of the mayor, Mary Hildebrand, director of community programming, said she will soon return with a date for the opening of a local studio behind the business office at 1918 Delmar Ave.

None of the major issues were resolved, however, at the conclusion of the hour meeting. Although Whitmer told the cable representatives that he thinks the council would agree to the dollar increase, even if displeased with services, Schuler said he is not so certain the council would give the go-ahead for the rate hike.

"I think we'll probably have to get back together again and kick this (Continued on Page 5)

Cold wave claims life

An elderly man, who was found unconscious in his home on the verge of freezing to death Friday, died at 4:48 p.m. Monday, Jan. 11, 1982.

Joseph H. Obernueffernan, 83, of 1932 Skoen St., Madison, died at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he had been taken after he was found to have suffered hypothermia and was barely breathing.

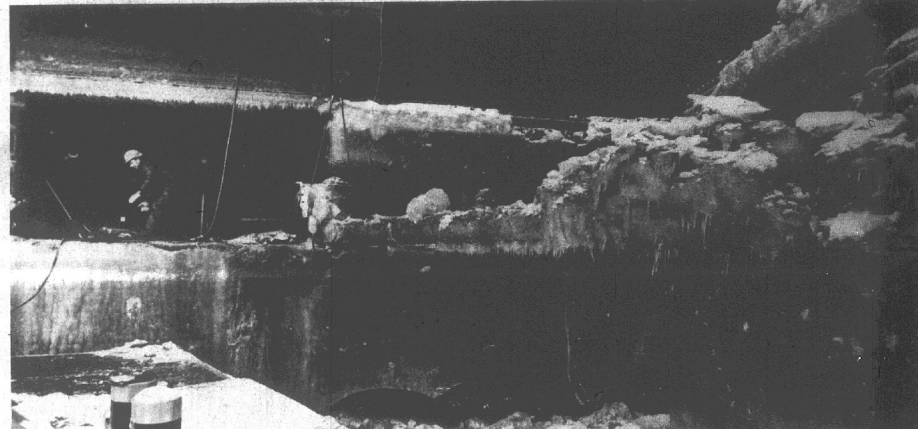

Two large dogs guarding the elderly man had to be removed before an ambulance crew could enter the small room to reach Mr. Obernueffernan, who was barely breathing. A tracheotomy was performed at the scene to help him breathe.

Mr. Obernueffernan was lying on top of a stack of old clothes when discovered. Burners on a stove were the only source of heat. Temperatures Friday were well below freezing.

Madison County sheriff's deputies were at the scene and authorities said Mr. Obernueffernan apparently fell and struck his head. There was a small laceration evident when emergency medical technicians arrived at the home. He was admitted to the intensive care unit of the medical center.

Mr. Obernueffernan, a retired self-employed plumber, is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robert (Mickey) Sind of Affton, Mo.

Funeral services were held today. Details are given in the obituary column.

NO SMALL TASK. U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' personnel repair a large hydraulic arm Wednesday afternoon which moves one of the huge miter gates at the south end of the main 1,200-foot lock at Locks No. 27. The extreme cold is believed to have caused the sheering of several bolts used to hold the arm in place. Thick ice build-up on the arm slowed the repairs, but the lock was reopened late Wednesday night. The arm is located about 30 feet below the top of the lock wall.

1,091 people leave county in 22 months

By GEORGEANN MCGEE
of the Press-Record
The population of the Illinois Metropolitan-St. Louis area has increased slightly since the 1980 census, but Madison County has experienced a further drop in population. Loss was found to have suffered hypothermia and was barely breathing.

The latest figures are estimates released Friday by the East-West

Gateway Coordinating Council, updating the April 1, 1980, census count through current vital statistics and residential utility customers.

Before the new indications of a drop in Madison County population, the 1980 census had already recorded a 1.3 percent decrease in county population — dropping from 250,911 to 247,691.

Granite City, Venice and Nameoki townships all recorded lower population counts in 1980 census since the previous census 10 years ago. Only Chouteau Township showed a slight, 1.2 percent, gain.

According to the Gateway Council, the population of the Illinois Metropolitan-St. Louis area was 2,348,000 the first of the year — a 28,600 increase over the census figures for that eight-county region.

These figures show a slight (0.2 percent) growth in the Illinois region, including a 1,423 overall increase when combining the total populations of Madison, Monroe and St. Clair counties. The updated 534,700 population figure compares to the 533,277 census figure.

The population for St. Louis showed a 1.6 decrease while St. Louis County showed a 2.1 percent gain for an

Ex-sheriff, others face bleak outlook

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

Less than a decade ago, a colorful Drug Abuse Questions and Answers booklet was published by the Madison County Deputy Sheriff Association. On the front cover was a photograph of Sheriff John Maeras and on the inside back cover was a picture of vocalist Crisly Lane.

By January 1982, the fortunes of those named in the preceding paragraph had changed dramatically and drastically. The sheriff, his chief of field operations, John Cooper, and others were assailed for actions of the deputy association. Its standing with the public fell sharply, and the organization went out of existence.

Maeras is no longer sheriff. He, Cooper and Miss Lane's husband, Lee Stoller, were convicted in 1979 of involvement in illegal kickbacks; their court appeals have now been exhausted.

The world has darkened for all of them. Cooper and Stoller are to begin serving prison terms Jan. 29. Maeras also could be ordered to prison but may not be, depending on the outcome of a physical examination; he has been a cancer patient for several years.

Crisly Lane has gained national acclaim due to her talent as a country and Western singer but faces the temporary departure of her manager-husband if he is imprisoned.

Fate can play cruel tricks on individuals. And all of those affected by the "RICO" prosecution, which alleged violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations statute, undoubtedly feel cruelly treated by the chain of events.

Fate may have played a part, but a study of the voluminous court record shows that the RICO law itself—enacted as Title IX of the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970—also was a big factor.

Its adoption coincided with Maeras' advancement to the office of sheriff. And without the broadened law, successful prosecution might not have been possible.

Even accepting that a conspiracy took place, viewpoints differ on whether the law was applied fairly. The changed circumstances for the individuals within the span of a few years are so sweeping that the script would have seemed unrealistic, if included in a work of fiction. But it is real; seven in all were convicted of wrongdoing and some already have completed their terms behind bars.

A physical examination has been ordered for the former sheriff to refute or verify a finding that he may have

Employment survey here next week

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the work week beginning Monday, Jan. 18, Marvin L. Postma, director of the bureau's regional office in Kansas City, has announced.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically-designed sample of approximately 71,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

For example, in November the survey indicated that of the 107 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 98 million were employed. The jobless rate was 8.4 percent, up from 8 percent in October and 7.5 percent in September.

Information supplied by people participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential, by law, and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Dr. King observances to be televised here

A one-hour special entitled "Martin Luther King: We Shall Not Forget," commemorating the 53rd birthday of the late Nobel Peace Prize winner, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., will air on Friday at 10:30 p.m. on KETC, Channel 9.

Produced in its entirety by Howard University's WMM-TV, Channel 32, in Washington, D.C., the program will feature highlights of that day's activities held in Washington and Atlanta, to both honor the slain civil rights leader and foster support for the declaration of his birthday as a national holiday.

For the second consecutive year, entertainer Stevie Wonder will be leading a march and rally in Washington to mobilize national support for a bill, introduced by Rep. John Conyers (D-Mich.), that would make Jan. 15 a national holiday.

The rally following the march will be held on the west steps of the U.S. Capitol Building and will feature a number of nationally prominent figures. Last year, the march and subsequent rally drew an estimated 200,000 people from across the nation.

The Atlanta portion of the program will contain coverage of an ecumenical service at the Ebenezer Baptist Church sponsored by Martin Luther King Center for Social Change, a "March of Celebration," and a ceremony dedicating the center's new Freedom Hall complex.

In addition to coverage of the Washington and Atlanta activities, the special also will feature interviews with Stevie Wonder, Dr. King's widow, Coretta Scott King, and other participants in both cities; a special segment on Dr. King's life and career; and an update on the current status of the Conyer's bill in Congress.

SIUE's benefit to the area topped $190 million in '81

The economic impact of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville on the St. Louis metropolitan area exceeded $190 million during the past fiscal year, according to data compiled by three members of the School of Business faculty at the university.

SIUE President Earl Lazerson, speaking Tuesday at a meeting of the University's Industrial Advisory Council, announced the results of a study measuring both direct spending and total economic impact of the university within the St. Louis Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA). The study was completed by Stanford L. Levin, associate professor, Donald S. Elliott, associate professor, and David C. Luan, professor, all in the university's department of economics.

President Lazerson stated,

"In response to suggestions from members of the industrial and business community, three members of our faculty have conducted a study which shows clearly that the university plays a major economic role in the St. Louis metropolitan area."

Further explaining the purpose of the study in the document's summary, Professor Levin said, "The presence of a university such as SIUE in a metropolitan area benefits the residents of the area in many ways. The impact can be in terms of the additional resources the university makes available: library facilities, access to continuing education programs, use of the university buildings and grounds for civic functions, and the provision of faculty as speakers and as a resource to the community. The benefit also may be in terms of education, cultural attractions, and sports events provided by the university. But one important impact of the university is likely to be the pure economic impact—the effect of expenditures by the university, its faculty and staff, and its students on the businesses in the area, on income, and on government revenues."

He continued, "The goal of the study was to quantify the total impact of the University on businesses, income and government. In this context, the university is no different than a steel mill, automobile assembly plant, or refinery. Each of these, including the university, produces a product which generates business activity, income, employment and government revenue."

According to the data, the university's direct expenditures in the metropolitan area totaled $80,567,903 in fiscal year 1981. The total economic impact, including direct and indirect effects, was $190,352,142. The investigators explained that during this period, each dollar of state funds appropriated to the university resulted in $2.40 of direct university-related expenditures and $5.10 of total economic activity in the St. Louis SMSA.

The study also shows that a total of 4,999 children from SIUE faculty, staff and student households were enrolled in public and private elementary and secondary schools in the St. Louis SMSA during FY81, with 4,469 of these students enrolled in Illinois schools. In Illinois, this resulted in $3,903,866 of Illinois state aid to public schools.

Another factor regarded significant by the investigators was the amount of taxes paid by SIUE faculty, staff and student households during the year. During 1980, these groups paid $2,023,075 in property taxes to local governments in the metropolitan area. The direct expenditures of university personnel resulted in local governments retaining $639,983 of sales taxes, and in Illinois, the presence of faculty, staff and student households resulted in $348,184 of state income taxes being returned to local governments.

Professor Levin said the data on faculty, staff and student expenditures was acquired by survey. The information on university purchases was acquired directly from university accounts. Estimates of spending by visitors to campus were provided by sponsoring university agencies.

The area covered by the study conforms to the service area of the university.

Fryzel named to state post

Governor James R. Thompson Monday appointed Michael E. Fryzel as director of the Department of Financial Institutions.

Mike Fryzel has been with the department during much of my administration and has done a fine job. I'm happy to be able to name him to this important post. He has been active in Polish-American affairs in Illinois and I am confident he will be an outstanding director," the governor said.

Fryzel, 36, has been administrator of the Unclaimed Property Division of the department since September, 1979, where he has supervised a staff of 56 people.

For the two years before that, Fryzel was supervisor of the Currency Exchange Division and was responsible for licensing, examining and regulating currency exchanges in Illinois. He served as assistant supervisor in that division during the previous five months.

Fryzel also held the post of Thornton Township Clerk for four years through April, 1977. In addition, he has worked as a campaign manager for a Congressional candidate, staff member for the Illinois House of Representatives and as director of the Administration of Fiscal Manager for the Governor's Office of Human Resources under former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Fryzel, a South Holland resident, succeeds Edgar Callahan as director. He resigned to become chairman of the National Credit Union Administration. John D. Seymour, who has been acting director of the department, is leaving to take a position in private industry.

Fryzel's annual salary is $43,000 and his appointment requires confirmation by the Illinois Senate. His term runs through Jan. 17, 1983.

Suit filed to prevent strip mining without controls

The National Wildlife Federation has filed suit against U.S. Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt in a move to protect the nation's prime farmland from what it called strip mining without any environmental controls.

The Federation, along with seven other conservation and civic groups, asked a federal court to overturn a regulation, issued by Watt, that would allow many existing strip mines on prime farmland to sidestep a federal law requiring restoration of mined land.

"Secretary Watt's regulation would determine the federal laws that sought to protect farmland from coal mining in the first place," said Norman Dean, attorney for NWF. "It would open up vast areas of prime farmland to strip mining without providing for any environmental controls."

Specifically, the suit challenges Watt's omission of a deadline from a regulation he issued in September to implement the so-called grandfather clause of the Surface Mining Reclamation and Control Act of 1977. According to Federation attorneys, the grandfather clause of the act established exemptions for mines operating at the time the legislation was passed, so that coal mining companies would have time to develop the technology for restoring strip-mined farmland to its original condition, as required by the Act. The Carter administration had proposed a 1982 deadline for these so-called "grandfather clause" exemptions.

Without a deadline or cutoff date, the suit charges, Watt's regulation provides no practical limits to strip mining on prime farmlands. If not overturned, it "will permit surface mining of coal on hundreds of thousands of acres of prime farmland without any showing that coal operators have the technological capability to restore the lands to their pre-mining productivity," says the Federation's complaint, filed in the District of Columbia's U.S. District Court.

Joining the NWF in the suit are the Iowa and Illinois Wildlife Federations, the Environmental Policy Institute, and four other civic and environmental organizations in Illinois. Also named as a defendant in the suit is Richard Harris, Director of the Office of Surface Mining, Reclamation and Enforcement within the U.S. Department of the Interior.

The suit claims that Watt's regulation violates the intent of the Surface Mining Reclamation and Control Act. It also maintains that Watt unlawfully implemented the regulation, because he did not obtain the approval of the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture as required by the Surface Mining Act.

Illinois, which contains half of the nation's prime farmland on which strip mining occurs, would be hardest hit by Watt's regulation, according to NWF attorneys. "Most of the strip mining in Illinois occurs on two coal seams," said Dean. "Watt's regulation would allow the 56 existing mines on those seams to continue mining under the grandfather clause as long as the reserves last. That leaves most, if not all, of Illinois' best farmland unprotected by the new regulation." According to Dean, not one existing coal mine in Illinois is yet obliged to meet the prime farmland requirements of the Surface Mining Act.

Watt's regulation, without any deadline for compliance, will result in a loss of productive farmland, increased water pollution, increased erosion and stream sedimentation, aesthetic damage, and the destruction of wildlife habitat, the suit alleges.

The Illinois and Iowa Wildlife Federations are state affiliates of the NWF, a conservation and education organization with more than 4.5 million members and supporters throughout the United States.

Extra income tax deduction

Residents of the Madison County Transit District can claim a slightly larger sales tax deduction on their federal income tax returns because of the quarter-cent transit tax that went into effect Feb. 1, 1981.

Those who paid the extra tax may increase their sales tax deduction to conform with it.

Based on a five-cent sales tax, the added quarter-cent tax amounts to an extra one-twentieth for a full year, or 11-12ths of that for 1981 due to the February starting date.

The Internal Revenue Service said that if a person's basic sales tax deduction is $200 for the last year, he or she can add another $9.16 to the deduction.

Sewer hookup schedule set for Quiet Valley

The Pontoon Beach Village Board of Trustees passed a resolution Tuesday which should finally result in the connection of about 150 Quiet Valley residents with Madison County's Sanitary Sewers Special Area One.

Village Clerk Mary Warren said the resolution will give the special service area 60 days to inspect the sewer lines to determine their condition, prior to the connection. She said the Special Service Area also will try to eliminate some Quiet Valley pumps that collect surface water.

The resolution was approved first by the Madison County Board Dec. 16, following discussions between the Pontoon Village Board and Assistant Madison County State's Attorney Marshall "Zeke" Smith.

Smith discussed at length the connection of Quiet Valley and possible upgrading of the lines before the connection. Houses in that area are now hooked to a lagoon system and pay a $4-a-month sewer charge. Funds available from that monthly collection will be used to flush the sewer lines in that area in preparation for the connection with the special sewer district. The board allocated $5,000 from that fund for the lines.

Mrs. Warren said infiltration studies were made on the sewer lines in November to determine if lines would meet county standards. She said the board engineer advised Pontoon Beach to seek bids to have the lines cleaned.

Upon the completion of the 60-day inspection by the county special sewer district and subsequent approval, Quiet Valley will then be connected with the special service area. Residents will switch from the current $4 monthly charge to a $15.80 per month charge.

The original deadline for residents of the special sewer district to have their home sewers connected to the county sewers was Nov. 15.

Arson, property damage charges

Earl C. Spaulding, 20, of 4027 Garden Lane was charged Tuesday with arson and criminal property damage.

At a court hearing in Granite City at 4 p.m. Wednesday, he pleaded innocent. Bonds were set at $25,000 for arson and $1,000 for property damage, and he was freed at 7:30 p.m. upon posting $2,604 in cash.

At 12:30 a.m. Tuesday he had called from a pay phone on Maryville Road near O'Hare Avenue and reported being lost and cold. He was located in the basement of an apartment building on Parkview Drive and was questioned by officers before being released. Later, checking on reports of fire damage, police followed footprints in the snow to the North Plant of Granite City Steel, where two security guards took him into custody shortly before 2 a.m. He then was jailed pending the hearing.

Two assailants attack man, 69

John Lewis, 69, of 1600 block of Fourth Street, Madison, was admitted to St. Elizabeth Medical Center last night after suffering cuts to his nose and a swollen wrist when he was assaulted by two men at Mel's Pub, 1225 Madison Ave.

He underwent surgery this morning and was reported in stable condition.

Lewis walked into the tavern looking for a friend at 9:40 p.m. Wednesday and was told by two men that he was not welcome there, he said.

The assailants, one believed to be from Pontoon Beach and the other from St. Clair, Mo., then grabbed him and threw him down three steps at the front of the building.

Lewis was advised to sign a complaint through the state's attorney's office.

Assaults girl at 12th-Madison

A 17-year-old Madison girl had five sutures taken above her right eye and was treated for facial bruises at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, after being struck by another teenage girl at 12th Street and Madison Avenue at 9:15 p.m. Monday.

The victim had agreed to meet her assailant, with whom she had argued three days earlier, she told police. When the girl got out of a four-wheel drive pickup truck, the other girl struck the victim's right eye with a fist.

A complaint against the girl was signed by the victim's parents.

150 attend seminar

Quad-City residents who waded through snow and ice and suffered the cold — some trying to squeeze the Tri-City Area Chamber of Commerce's positive lecture into a half-hour lunch schedule — were asked to consider the following chain of events.

—You wake up eager to face the new day and get hit in the face with your children's oatmeal.

Undaunted, you start on your way to work and some "idiot" on the road nearly ends your day entirely.

—And you have time to contemplate eternity as you wait for a long train crawling along freight car by freight car by freight car in front of you.

—When you arrive at work the boss checks the clock and asks about the "late so-and-so" and he's speaking about you.

Well, a positive attitude can meet any oatmeal thrown its way, according to R.N. "Redd" Storey, a positively superlative example, who carries on the tradition of Dale Carnegie school of success.

Storey, a secretary, steel employees and city officials with a collection of stories that would put any negative thinkers to shame.

David Knollman, chamber president, said the chamber thought the program might just be what the city needed as an unemployment statistics here look grim and opportunities are a little harder to find.

About 150 residents did attend the "Positive Thinking Seminar and Rally," held Wednesday at the YMCA.

Storey told the note-taking audience that positive thinking is not a "fancy philosophy" and it was not always easy, but it usually paid off in promotions, personal happiness and friendships.

Storey told the tale about a man who saw his "twin" while traveling in an elevator. He told his friend that the man looked like himself, dressed himself and seemed to mimic his mannerisms exactly.

"Well what did you say to him?" his friend asked. "Nothing," the man replied. "I didn't like his looks."

Storey used the example to illustrate the kinds of attitudes that harm positive relationships. He encouraged the audience to trust others and said that attitude would show on the job, both to customers and to the boss.

We have to feel we are the most important person in the world at times, Storey said, to be able to accept ourselves at the best and worst of times.

Storey was assisted by Del Davis, area manager for the Carnegie Institute, Davis stressed the importance of goal setting, saying people who had goals were the achievers in life.

Storey has trained thousands of men and women in management, salesmanship, public speaking and human relations.

The board of education of the combined Venice high and grade school district started this month without any funds in the treasury and faced with the prospect of not paying its employees and incidental expenses or calling an election for a bond issue. Official cognizance of the critical situation was taken Monday when the first meeting of the board was held after receiving notice from its bank that 75 per cent of the district's anticipated revenue had already been expended and no further warrants would be honored.

For their "progressive and unique approach" to the planning needs of the Granite City area, four local governmental units will share in the seventh annual Civic Achievement Award of the Associated Retailers and Civic Association, it was announced today by Judge Wesley Luaders, chairman of the special Award Committee. The four municipal groups are the city of Granite City, Granite City School District, Granite City Park District and the Granite City Housing Authority.

The City of Madison may develop two major shopping centers soon if the city council approved a plan which Mayor Mike Sasyk will present to the aldermen tomorrow evening. The plan calls for the construction of two commercial areas, one encompassing a city block in the downtown Madison area and a smaller center on the other end of town, according to the mayor. The estimate cost for both shopping centers is $1,250,000. The project will be financed with revenue bonds.

News notes Red jeans

Vandals on Tuesday night broke off the westbound traffic gate at the 22nd Street railroad crossing and the eastbound traffic gate at the 25th Street crossing.

The Illinois House and Senate, assembled to hear the governor's annual "state of the state" address Wednesday, voted 148-4 and 54-0 to repeal a new state law allowing private citizens to own machine guns.

In his 1982 message to legislators Wednesday, Gov. James H. Thompson cited the current economic recession and urged continued efforts to keep state governmental income and spending in balance. He supported new liquor taxes, help for the state's transportation system, and reform of property tax procedures.

A third Madison County jailer has resigned after allegations of spying on women prisoners.

The Russians are putting off the westbound traffic gate at the 22nd Street railroad crossing and the eastbound traffic gate at the 25th Street crossing.

The reasons for all this, of course, are obvious. The Russian-made stuff is junk; it will sell better with an American label. Decent, imported stuff is outrageously expensive.

Counterfeit jeans labels are not a new problem for Western manufacturers, some of whom employ sleuths who do nothing but ferret out the phonies. But it does appear to be a new thing in the Soviet Union, where it must be particularly hard to disprove the growing passion for jeans as just another example of bourgeois decadence. Workers of Russia, arise, you have nothing to lose but your three-piece suits.

Effective with the Monday, Jan. 18, issue, the price of the Press-Record will rise from 20 cents to 25 cents. Sourcing prices for newsprint (paper) and higher costs involved in delivering the newspaper to homes and distribution points around," the mayor told the cable group.

Bowler, Whitmer and Schuler said they are most concerned about the 38 percent increase to senior citizens after having been given the discount when signing up for cable services. "You guys couldn't have picked a worse time to ask for an increase," the mayor said. "Whitmer said he is among the senior citizens who would be affected by the increase. Whitmer said that, according to calls he has been receiving, some seniors may decide to discontinue the service. 'I might be one of them,' he stated."

Bowler argued the senior citizens' discount was used as one of the selling points by South-Western Cable to enter into a franchise agreement with Granite City. Cripps said the seniors would continue to receive a discount on their basic rate, $4 instead of the regular $7 charge.

About 500 of the city's 5,200 subscribers are senior citizens. South-Western Controller David Olson said the basic service offers seniors a wide variety, and seniors who want to take a "step farther" by asking for pay channels should pay for them. "We could discuss senior citizen rates forever," Mrs. Hildebrand said.

The discount situation "just got out of control" when homebound residents, who were not senior citizens, requested and were granted the discount. According to Mrs. Hildebrand, "The suppliers then said no."

Cripps said South-Western is probably one of the few cable systems that gives senior citizen discounts for the pay channels.

Signal interference was another issue discussed. "We have had problems since August. I can assure you," the mayor told the cable representatives in response to the vice-president's remark that there have been no major reception problems since that time. There have been numerous complaints, the mayor said.

He cited problems in reception with a football game televised Sunday. Bowler said he recently noticed similar problems.

The vice-president said he is "actually very pleased" with the performance of South-Western's equipment. He said some recent signal problems could be affecting only a small area or could be due to the subscriber's improper use of the home equipment.

Schuler disagreed, saying he makes a practice of calling other users when there is a problem with his reception and finds the situation widespread. Bowler said interference he experiences on his set is not the problem of an "isolated area."

Cripps said he keeps close watch on service calls and contended that maintenance response by his company is made the same day of the complaint, or the following day. The Granite City cable office now is handling all service calls, according to the vice-president, who said the result was been streamlined service.

The franchise contract between South-Western and the city states that difficulties with individual units should be handled within 24 hours.

"I think we are on top of it now," Cripps said. He told the mayor and aldermen his company is presently "putting the fine tuning" on the system.

Mrs. Hildebrand promised Schuler that she would return with a date for the operation of a local studio after the mayor approved the franchise contract. The contract states that South-Western will provide a local programming channel, in addition to three local access channels.

The cable company had agreed to provide a minimum of one production studio equipped with an adequate color TV low-tech system; technical assistance; and a staff person to oversee the operation of the local origination channel.

Mrs. Hildebrand said the equipment is on order to convert Channel 9 into a production studio for Granite City and Highland. According to her, one of the problems with the local channel will be that it will transmit only in the local city.

"Some people tend to want to use Channel 1," she said because it is a regional channel reaching all South-Western franchise areas. The regional channel programs are produced in Maryville, where the company's main studio is located.

Mrs. Hildebrand said South-Western does not program local access channels. "We provide technical assistance and teach others (volunteers) to use the cameras...We can program in Maryville."

"You do it yourself," Bowler commented of local programming.

Mrs. Hildebrand said a local access public service station could not be used for advertising, using KETC, Channel 9, as an example. However, the franchise contract states that South-Western may use advertising on the community programming channels.

Regional Channel 1 does occasionally feature advertising. Any revenue from advertising must be used exclusively for the support, operation and programming of the community channels, according to the contract.

Bowler asked if a security or medical alert system could be incorporated into South-Western's system. Cripps said that such options are "still in the pioneering stages. It looks like another service that cable systems could be offering down the road," Cripps said.

South-Western is working on a system to allow the mayor and city defense director audio access to the cable station in the event of an emergency. She said the emergency alert system will be the first of its kind in the state, if implemented.

Little discussion was held on the dollar increase that had been the basis for the meeting. South-Western representatives gave city officials an informational sheet outlining the proposed basic rate increase. It stated the company experienced a 36 percent increase in expenses since 1979, when the franchise was signed.

If the council does not agree to the $1 rate hike by Jan. 27, a board of arbitrators must render a decision on the request, according to the franchise contract. The board would be composed of two members selected by the city, two selected by the cable system, and a fifth to be selected by those four.

How the new tax law will affect you

(Internal Revenue Service)

Last summer, the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 was signed into law. Its provisions began affecting taxpayers as early as July 20, 1981, and continue for several years thereafter.

The new tax law does more than simply lower personal income taxes; it provides tax benefits for savings, for charitable contributions, and to those planning for retirement.

It also gives some tax relief for two-earner couples, older Americans selling their homes, and taxpayers who pay for the care of a child while they work.

To help you understand the major provisions of the Tax Act, here is a summary of the changes affecting the individual taxpayer:

Individual Tax Rates and Indexing. Tax withholding rates for individuals were reduced by 5 percent on October 1, 1981, and will be cut another 10 percent on July 1, 1982, and an additional 10 percent on July 1, 1983.

Beginning in 1985, the individual tax brackets, the personal exemption, and the zero bracket amount will be indexed to keep pace with inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

The purpose of this change is to avoid situations where tax brackets by inflation are pushed into higher tax brackets by inflation.

Tax-Exempt "All-Savers" Certificates. Taxpayers investing in qualifying All-Savers Certificates between October 1, 1981, and December 31, 1982, can exclude from their incomes up to $1,000 of the interest on individual returns, and up to $2,000 on joint returns.

These certificates must have a maturity of one year and have an investment yield equal to 70 percent of the yield on 52-week Treasury bills issued at the most recent auction before the certificate.

Sale of a Home. Homeowners age 55 or older who have invested up to $125,000 of the gain on the sale of their principal residence if the sale came after July 20, 1981.

To qualify for this once-in-a-lifetime exclusion, you must have owned and used the property as your principal residence for three of the five years immediately before the date of sale.

Previously, such homeowners could exclude up to $100,000 of the gain on the sale of the home.

Roll-over of Gain on Sale of a Home. If you sold your home after July 20, 1981, you have 24 months in which to re-invest the profit in a new home of greater or equal value, and not pay a capital gains tax.

The 24-month period also applies to sales made before July 21, if the old 18 month rollover period did not expire before that date.

For example, if you sold your home on December 10, 1981, you would have 24 months to re-invest the profit in a new home of greater or equal value, and not pay a capital gains tax.

Previously, such homeowners could exclude up to $100,000 of the gain on the sale of the home.

(Internal Revenue Service)

Last summer, the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 was signed into law. Its provisions began affecting taxpayers as early as July 20, 1981, and continue for several years thereafter.

The new tax law does more than simply lower personal income taxes; it provides tax benefits for savings, for charitable contributions, and to those planning for retirement.

It also gives some tax relief for two-earner couples, older Americans selling their homes, and taxpayers who pay for the care of a child while they work.

To help you understand the major provisions of the Tax Act, here is a summary of the changes affecting the individual taxpayer:

Individual Tax Rates and Indexing. Tax withholding rates for individuals were reduced by 5 percent on October 1, 1981, and will be cut another 10 percent on July 1, 1982, and an additional 10 percent on July 1, 1983.

Beginning in 1985, the individual tax brackets, the personal exemption, and the zero bracket amount will be indexed to keep pace with inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

The purpose of this change is to avoid situations where tax brackets by inflation are pushed into higher tax brackets by inflation.

Tax-Exempt "All-Savers" Certificates. Taxpayers investing in qualifying All-Savers Certificates between October 1, 1981, and December 31, 1982, can exclude from their incomes up to $1,000 of the interest on individual returns, and up to $2,000 on joint returns.

These certificates must have a maturity of one year and have an investment yield equal to 70 percent of the yield on 52-week Treasury bills issued at the most recent auction before the certificate.

Sale of a Home. Homeowners age 55 or older who have invested up to $125,000 of the gain on the sale of their principal residence if the sale came after July 20, 1981.

husband and wife.

Also beginning January 1, 1982, self-employed individuals will be allowed a deduction for a Keogh plan contribution of up to 15 percent of earned income of $15,000, whichever is less. The previous limit was $7,500.

Charitable Contribution Deduction for Non-Itemizers. The new law, starting in 1982, allows a limited deduction for charitable contributions to taxpayers who do not itemize deductions.

For tax years beginning in 1982, or in 1983, taxpayers who do not itemize deductions will be permitted to deduct 25 percent of their first $100, or a maximum of $25 for each year.

For 1984, the allowed deduction is 25 percent of the first $300 of charitable contributions, or a maximum deduction of $75 for the year.

In 1985, it increases to 50 percent of total contributions, and 100 percent of total contributions in 1986, subject to the general restrictions on contributions. The special deduction for non-itemizers will expire in 1987.

average 1.4 percent increase. Growth in St. Charles, Jefferson and Franklin counties represents nearly half the growth in the Missouri portion of the East-West Gateway sampling.

Final figures from the 1980 Census of Population and Housing had confirmed initial findings that this area has suffered decreases. The decreases were confirmed, however, local efforts promoting a more thorough canvassing.

City workers had conducted a "mini-census" to find blocks of population which officials here believed were missed in the canvass, after the initial Census Bureau recorded Granite's population at 36,099. Ten years ago, the census listed Granite's population at 40,685.

A Complete Count Committee working with the Bureau of Census succeeded in bringing the final figure up by 716 for a count of 36,815.

The population of Madison as of April 1, 1980, increased by 15 from the preliminary census count of 5,900. Venice increased by 62 from the preliminary count of 3,418. Both figures, however, represent drops of 16 and 25 percent, respectively, from 10 years ago.

The population of Nameoki Township, which includes parts of Collinsville, Madison and Pontoon Beach, dropped 1.9 percent since the 1970 census. The population went from 13,672 to 13,600. Pontoon Beach village had a rise in population of 888 from 2,448 a decade ago to 3,336 at present. Housing units in Pontoon Beach increased by 411 units. A unit can indicate a home, an apartment, a group of rooms or a single room occupied as a separate living quarters.

Chouteau Township, consisting of South Roxana Village and parts of Mitchell, Pontoon Beach, Hartford village and Roxana village, increased by 1.2 percent. The population grew from 8,821 to 8,827, mainly due to the increase at Pontoon Beach.

Other areas in Madison County that did increase in the last 10 years include Glen Carbon village, Maryville village, Edwardsville, Highland, Troy and Grantfork.

According to East-West Gateway, neighboring counties of Monroe and St. Clair counties were also up slightly, compared to the Madison County decline.

$44,000 fire damage at 2 GC homes Wednesday

Fire heavily damaged two Granite City residences on Wednesday as snow, ice and below-freezing weather continued their grip on the local community.

At 12:45 p.m., while a frozen sewer pipe was being thawed with a portable propane torch, a two-story frame home at 2035 Dewey Ave. caught fire.

Firefighters, who were at the scene for two and a half hours, estimated the damage at $20,000 to the building and $5,000 to the contents.

The occupant was Albert Townsend and the owner was Fireman Robert Sanders. Sanders, who lives in an adjacent home at 2037 Dewey Ave., suffered second-degree burns on the right hand while helping fight the blaze.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday, firemen rushed to a one-story frame residence at 2801 Buxton Ave., owned by Craig Billmer and occupied by David Gregory.

A short-circuit had occurred in electrical wiring. The firemen were able to limit the blaze to a bedroom, but the fire loss was $12,000 to the structure and $7,000 to furniture and other belongings. They were at the fire for an hour and 20 minutes.

At 10:15 a.m. Wednesday, a short-circuit in a light socket caused a fire at a residence at 1726 Cleveland Boulevard but it was extinguished without any loss.

Firemen also went at 8:10 a.m. Wednesday to 2034 Washington Ave., where a blower motor had filled the house with smoke but there was no fire.

At 4:25 p.m. Tuesday, rags and cardboard ignited on a makeshift wall at a basement landing at 2226 Dewey Ave. There was no fire damage to the home.

Ex-sheriff

less than two months to live. U.S. Attorney Gerald Fines is reminding the court that—in 1979—it was asserted that Maeras was unlikely to survive more than six months.

A decision on Maeras' pending 15-year sentence is to be made by U.S. District Judge J. Waldo Ackerman, who presided at the three men's trial and this month set the Jan. 29 confinement date for Maeras' former aide, Cooper, and for Stoller, promoter of the defunct deputy group's fund-raising events.

Cooper is to serve 15 years for his part in a scheme involving payoffs and kickbacks from truck operators, prostitutes and taverns and for "skimming" part of the funds ostensibly raised for charitable purposes. Stoller faces a three-year term for cooperating in payoffs to the ex-sheriff, Cooper and others.

Despite the convictions, the three still have many friends who wish them well and who regard the penalties as a miscarriage of justice. Some judges agree that it is unjust.

There is particularly strong sentiment against placing the former sheriff in any sort of custody, due to his extreme health problem.

Younger brother of the late Madison Mayor Stephen Maeras, John Maeras for a number of years combined nighttime duties as a Madison policeman with daytime appointive positions at the Madison County Courthouse.

A former Illinois law barred the immediate re-election of sheriffs and county treasurers, to discourage super-powerful individuals from holding such offices for a lifetime.

Well-connected politicians often were able to stay in elective office continuously, despite the law, by alternately holding the two offices.

Maeras had such connections, made use of them, and became one of this county's numerous 20th Century "treasure-hunters." He was elected as treasurer in 1966 and sheriff in 1970. After re-election finally was permitted, he tried for and won a second term as sheriff in 1974.

Many people gave him passing or higher grades for his performance as a county official, and he avoided much of the stigma that had been associated with the sheriff office a generation or two ago.

In the rough-and-tumble "good old days" long before he became a candidate, it was possible to joke that re-election was no inconvenience; after all, a sheriff who knew how to make the most of the office could become wealthy in much less than four years, cynics suggested.

It was assumed in olden times, correctly or not, that many citizens wanted their county to be at least somewhat illicit activity, and that tolerating crime could be profitable. But times had changed and a stricter enforcement stance was expected by most people by the time Maeras pinned on the badge of sheriff.

Before his second sheriff term had ended, there were public calls for him to resign (he did not). But his conduct of the office had drawn little or no attention at first.

Aided by hindsight, critics now say there were few crime crackdowns. Only a limited number of major cases were solved; there was little visible hard work by anybody. Not much was done to reform patronage hiring procedures.

There was scant emphasis on patrol efficiency or investigative speed, and there were few gains in technical expertise. But scandalous activity, if it was occurring, was kept well behind the scenes.

Forty-four years old when initially elected as sheriff, John Maeras could and did point with pride to his past service in a challenging job, that of county treasurer.

In the 1970 campaign, he told voters, "I will not let a single penny of the county's money be lost to the public."

"For 11 years, I was a city police officer in Madison. I am well-versed in county government and in police work, both of which are important if one wants to be an effective sheriff."

"I attended Madison schools. I am a World War II veteran of the Marine Corps and belong to civic, veterans' and fraternal organizations. I am a past president of the Madison County Police Officers Association."

Tall and broad-shouldered, with a pleasant appearance and broad smile, he was the very model of a modern law enforcement official, as the public saw it, and he won the position with ease.

By the time he ran again for sheriff, he could add that he was a past president of the Illinois Sheriffs Association.

By then he had 22 years of county governmental service, partly overlapping his 15 years in law enforcement, and was able to stress his "experience and understanding" as factors uniquely equipping him to "meet the problems that day to day confront the sheriff's department."

Maeras told voters in 1974, "I will always strive to better equip and train the officers to cope with the crime situation that I am sure is a concern to all residents."

"All deputies attend the Police Training Institute at the University of Illinois before their probationary period is up."

"We have a young department but the average deputy is 29 semester hours of college training. I encourage them to get whatever education that will better their knowledge of police procedures. I have tried to get onetime training to get a new jail facility for the county."

"Not only in this county, but everywhere—I am sure—the drug situation is a problem. With our drug unit, we are doing what we can to help alleviate some of the problem. I am trying to increase the size of the unit and to have the members educated and trained in that field."

What went wrong? How could such high ideals have failed to meet the test of time?

The federal government contends the picture was never as rosy as many people assumed. The lofty image of will county that was discussed in election campaigns may have accurately reflected its surface characteristics, but not what was going on underneath the surface, federal attorneys said.

The prosecutors proved to be persuasive. Those placed on trial vigorously asserted their innocence. But jurors concluded that some of the defendants had given in to personal considerations in carrying out official duties and had been allocating funds of benefit projects.

Allegations and occurrences included:

1975—Vice payoffs arranged, and efforts made to obtain tow truck kickbacks.

1972—Fund solicitation expanded.

1973—Raids by deputies and new fund contracts.

1974—Contract with Stoller for a fund-raising drug booklet, and a letter of the sheriff's office, unaware of the payoff scheme, led a raid on one of the principal contributors.

"Shortly thereafter, Maeras called in the sergeant and asked why he had not informed his superiors prior to the raid. The sergeant promised to inform Maeras in advance of any possible future raids."

"Cooper continued to make pickups (there) until May 1972, when another raid—conducted by two assistant state attorneys—closed the establishment down again. Maeras was again informed of this raid only after it took place."

"Meanwhile, Maeras and Cooper had arranged to transfer to a remote area of the county another deputy in the accusation was causing problems for another house of prostitution involved in the scheme."

"Payments totaling approximately $100,000 were made by the second brother) until January 1973, when the club was raided by Illinois State Police."

"The Madison County sheriff's office

conversations with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

1977—Grand jury testimony. Natural death of a witness.

1978—Three police officers convicted. A deputy resigned.

1979—The Maeras-Cooper-Stoller trial. New Sheriff Emil Toffant fired a deputy who, as a trial witness, had admitted misconduct.

1980—The three former police go to prison.

1981—Convictions in the Maeras trial upheld by seven judges of the Seventh Circuit U. S. Court of Appeals. Retusal by the U. S. Supreme Court to set aside the convictions.

The appeal judges concluded that RICO (racketeering and corruption) prosecution was proper because the office of county sheriff can be defined as an "enterprise" under that law.

The appeal court found "two broad corruption schemes."

"The first aspect of corruption involved payoffs for prostitution and towing activities. Shortly after his inauguration as sheriff, Maeras discussed with his (relative) and his friend kickbacks which he knew deputies were receiving from towing companies and houses of prostitution within the county."

"He told them that he wanted the payoffs stopped and that any money should go to him and not the deputies."

"After a few days, (the friend and relative) agreed to visit various places on behalf of the sheriff and inform them that the payoffs were henceforth to be delivered to (the friend) collecting for the sheriff and that no further payments were to be made to the deputies."

"After the first such visit—to a towing firm in Wood River—the (relative) was replaced by Cooper, who (the friend and the friend) felt would be more tactful."

"Altogether, Cooper and (the friend) visited 11 establishments. In each case, they informed the owner that the sheriff wanted all further payments to be made to him. And they negotiated with the owner regarding the price per prostitute (normally $50 per week) or per tow ($5 each). (The friend) arranged to make weekly pickups."

"Six of the owners agreed but five refused for various reasons."

"One owner of a lounge engaged in prostitution, for example, said he did not have to pay them because he was taking care of them in Madison County. Another pointed out that while his bar was located in Madison County, his motel rooms were in the rear of the bar across the county line in St. Clair County."

"The plan began to disintegrate in December 1971 when a sergeant in the sheriff's office, unaware of the payoff scheme, led a raid on one of the principal contributors."

"Shortly thereafter, Maeras called in the sergeant and asked why he had not informed his superiors prior to the raid. The sergeant promised to inform Maeras in advance of any possible future raids."

"Cooper continued to make pickups (there) until May 1972, when another raid—conducted by two assistant state attorneys—closed the establishment down again. Maeras was again informed of this raid only after it took place."

"Meanwhile, Maeras and Cooper had arranged to transfer to a remote area of the county another deputy in the accusation was causing problems for another house of prostitution involved in the scheme."

"Payments totaling approximately $100,000 were made by the second brother) until January 1973, when the club was raided by Illinois State Police."

"The Madison County sheriff's office was notified of the raid only on the day it took place; the organizer of the raid was opposed to even that late notice."

"The owners of the club telephoned (the friend of Maeras) during the raid to learn why they were being raided. (The friend) explained later that Maeras had been out of town when the search warrant had been prepared and filed."

"The club did not reopen for more than a year, when it did so under the name of a new owner. It was raided shortly thereafter by sheriff's deputies led by (a deputy who later resigned)."

"The IRS began an investigation in early 1974 of (the friend's) tax liabilities for 1970-71-72, the years during which he was receiving the payoffs."

"(The friend), Cooper and Maeras discussed the situation and developed a story to tell the IRS that the two had been conducting an investigation for Maeras. (The friend) was to say that the investigation was supervised by a captain of the sheriff's office, since the captain had died (and, therefore, could not deny it)."

"He was also to claim that the investigation had discovered that a former deputy (also dead) was receiving payoffs (before his death)."

"After Maeras had signed a letter authorizing (the friend) to speak to the IRS and referring to an investigation performed by him for me, concerning suspected unlawful operations in Madison County," (the friend) told the story as prepared to the IRS."

"Cooper and Maeras were both later interviewed under oath and repeated the same story."

"By early 1975, the IRS declared that (the friend) owed $6,000 in interest and penalties for money collected from (the second brother) and others. He paid the $6,000 but, in September 1977—even though Cooper and Maeras had discontinued all contacts with him—he told the investigation story to a federal grand jury."

"Cooper and Maeras were both later interviewed under oath and repeated the same story."

"In addition to the towing and prostitution payoffs, a second aspect of corruption of Sheriff Maeras and Cooper involved the Madison County Deputy Sheriffs' Association (DSA), which had been formed in 1970 as a bargaining unit for the deputies."

"Shortly after DSA's formation, the deputies joined another union. DSA, which had 100 percent membership, became a social and charitable organization."

"Cooper was the president at that time and (the deputy who later resigned) was secretary."

"In 1971, at the urging of Cooper, DSA contracted with Stoller to organize and promote a 'Sheriff's Dance' to raise money for DSA."

"Stoller paid his own solicitation expenses and received 75 percent of the money collected; DSA received the other 25 percent. The first dance, held in February 1972, was a success and raised thousands of dollars for DSA."

"Sheriff Maeras discussed Stoller and his fund-raising activities with Cooper and (the deputy who later resigned) a month or so later."

"He asked them, 'What's in it for old John?'"

"Cooper answered that he would work something out with Stoller. When Stoller next returned to Madison County a few months later, Cooper and (the deputy) met."

"Cooper explained to Stoller what a powerful man Maeras was in Madison County and that, without his approval, any fund-raising activity would be doomed."

"Stoller objected at first, but they soon reached an agreement by which Stoller was to pay 10 percent to Maeras of the gross money collected."

"Stoller, Lee Stoller Enterprises and DSA then executed a contract for further fund-raising activities but that contract did not mention that any money would go to Maeras."

"A second dance was held, in September 1972, and more were to follow. Stoller delivered cash to Cooper and (the deputy), and they passed it along to Maeras at his office."

"After a few deliveries, however, the two deputies decided that Maeras should not get all the money while they took all the risks. So they began to skim some money off the top of the first skim and keep it for themselves."

"Stoller paid Maeras approximately $10,000 to $12,000; Cooper and (the deputy) kept about $3,000 each for their efforts."

"Trouble began to develop for this scheme when (the deputy), who had replaced Cooper as president of DSA, was succeeded by (another individual) in May 1975."

"The new management of the association noticed that the books kept by Cooper and (the deputy) were incomplete and that DSA had accounted only for a small portion of the money raised by Stoller."

"They also noted that checks had been made payable to one Detective Agency from the DSA account; the two owners of the agency were Cooper and Stoller."

"The new officers confronted Stoller, who could not explain the discrepancies. He reimbursed DSA $650 for some of the unauthorized expenditures."

"Nevertheless, DSA terminated all business with Stoller about Dec. 1, 1975. DSA was disbanded in August 1976," the appeal judges wrote.

A federal grand jury indicted Maeras, Cooper, Stoller and Lee Stoller Enterprises, Inc., on Nov. 29, 1978, for conspiracy to violate RICO.

All the defendants were also charged with 14 counts of mail fraud and six counts of wire fraud.

Four counts charged Maeras and Cooper with making and inducing false statements in IRS jurisdiction. A final count charged Maeras and Cooper with obstructing justice by persuading (the deputy) to testify falsely before a grand jury."

On Feb. 25, 1979, after a two-week jury trial, the jury found the defendants guilty on all but three counts; at the close of the government's case, the trial court had dismissed two wire fraud counts and the obstruction of justice count.

The U.S. district court for the southern district of Illinois, Alton division, denied the defendants' post-trial motion and, on May 25, 1979, sentenced Cooper to 15 years and Stoller to three years of imprisonment. Lee Stoller Enterprises was fined $10,000.

Maeras later was sentenced to 15 years of imprisonment.

After the case was argued before a panel of the appeal court but prior to a decision, the judges in regular active service voted to hear the appeal en banc, as a group, because of "the importance of the issue of whether a public entity may be a RICO enterprise."

The case was argued en banc Feb. 19, 1981, and was decided June 30, 1981. The convictions were affirmed by the U. S. Supreme Court Nov. 30, 1981, and orders for two of the terms to begin on Jan. 29, 1982, were issued Jan. 5.

Echols sets King march

Venice City Mayor Tyrone Echols told council members at their regular meeting Tuesday that he will participate in a march in tribute to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. tomorrow.

Echols said he will walk from Bissel and Klein streets, down Klein to the Venice City Hall. The march would begin at 10 a.m. and would conclude with an address by a minister at the city hall. The public is being invited to join the mayor and other participants in the march tribute.

The mayor asked council members to write letters to their federal representatives to let them know how the city feels about the future elimination of the Belleville Area College Senior Aides Program, to be disbanded about May 31.

About 15 Venice residents are employed by the program, including one aide who works part-time at the Venice City Hall and two who work for the Venice School District.

Echols' suggestion was prompted by a letter from Madeline Simpson, BAC director of the senior aides who said the program had not been included in the

Guidelines for treatment of juveniles are studied

How do juvenile court personnel decide whether a child will be tried as an adult? Should the juvenile be detained? What treatment is best for a delinquent? These questions are the subject of an investigation by Dr. J. Thomas Grisso, professor of psychology at St. Louis University. The eventual goal of Grisso's research is to help the juvenile court officers, lawyers and judges to understand how juvenile case characteristics affect their decisions, thereby enhancing the courts' effectiveness and efficiency in making decisions about the handling and treatment of juveniles.

Grisso, a clinical psychologist whose work with juveniles first interested him in this matter, is the principal researcher in a comprehensive study of decision-making in juvenile courts. The three-year project is being funded by a $331,000 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Grisso and his team researched the laws of all 50 states to determine the legal standards that control courts' decisions regarding juvenile offenders, and to examine suggestions made by the higher courts in appellate cases as to which factors, if any, lower courts should consider in handling a case. Next, they interviewed approximately 100 juvenile court personnel from various-sized juvenile courts in four states to discover the kinds of juvenile characteristics that decision makers believed were important for making decisions about detention, certification of juveniles and disposition (treatment).

The result was a very complex list of all the characteristics of children which surfaced in the standardized interview covering the three decision areas pertinent to juvenile court personnel. What emerged, Grisso says, was like "a great big dictionary, a catalog of characteristics" which evaluators said they used to make decisions in cases. By eliminating redundancies, the researchers were able to reduce the list to 133 variables.

About 80 of the variables are "observable," such as age, number of prior offenses and whether the crime was committed with a weapon. Those remaining are inferences about traits, such as aggression, intelligence and sophistication.

For example, deputy juvenile officers may use observable factors to make inferences, as when an officer infers that a juvenile is "sophisticated" upon learning that the person lives alone, runs with adults and is out of school. This inference could lead to the recommendation that the child be tried as an adult.

Returns from questionnaires using the 133 variables, issued to approximately 1,500 people in more than 100 juvenile courts throughout the United States, will be used to shed light upon juvenile court personnel's decision-making processes.

Plan development board at SIUE

Plans to form a Southern Illinois Economic Development Corporation with the aid of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville were announced Tuesday by SIUE President Earl Lazerson at a meeting of the university's Industrial Advisory Council.

President Lazerson said the major purposes of the corporation, which will be headed by a directorate of Metro-East leaders from business, industry, labor and government, will be to coordinate and motivate the economic development activities of the region.

The corporation would provide representation for southwestern Illinois within the framework of an Economic Development Coordinating Council, which is being considered by the leadership of the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association (RCGA). Lazerson is a member of the RCGA's board of directors and executive committee.

"The key to the success of this venture will be to bring together the agencies and organizations which have the most to gain from—and to contribute to—a solution to our economic problems," President Lazerson told the Industrial Advisory Council. "If we can provide a higher level of cooperation, as well as a clearer sense of direction, we can more efficiently use our resources to the betterment of all."

The president reported to the council on the results of a study sponsored by the RCGA and conducted by the Fantus Company, nationally known specialists in evaluating and recommending potential industrial and office sites for corporate clients. The study gave the St. Louis metropolitan region, which includes Madison, St. Clair, Clinton and Monroe counties in Illinois, an overall rating of "good" with a 2.96 average on a four-point scale. Lazerson pointed out that the highest rating ever given a metropolitan area by Fantus was 3.35.

Fantus rated the area as "excellent" in 23 of 57 categories and "poor" in only four categories. The business and industrial location specialists recommended the formation of an Economic Development Coordinating Council to deal with problems of the area, including labor-management relations, image to outsiders, air quality for living, and attracting manufacturers from outside the area.

A specific recommendation of the Fantus study was that SIUE should continue to be "an important over-seer of the economic development of southwestern Illinois," Lazerson said. The president recalled that in 1978, while he was serving as acting vice-president and provost of SIUE, he established the Office of Area Development to assist in the economic development of the Metro-East area.

"Under the leadership of Dr. Robert Koepke, that office has been able to help numerous communities with specific economic development-related projects," Lazerson stated.

The president also summarized the financial concerns which are evident throughout higher education in America and enumerated concerns which are evident throughout higher education in America and enumerated "self-help" measures which are being undertaken by SIUE in the areas of energy, productivity, salaries and reallocation to maintain a "strong and quality institution."

"It's a bleak fiscal picture at the state and federal levels. Inflation continues. On top of this, we can expect enrollment decreases in the traditional higher education age cohorts."

"To achieve and maintain quality, these circumstances will tax our intelligence and our sensibilities, but we will succeed, because the community we serve cannot afford failure on our part. In addition to our mission of instruction, research and service, we contribute directly as an employer and purchaser of goods and services to the regional economy," Lazerson stated.

Suggesting that higher education can play a greater role in helping the economy and community, President Lazerson pointed out that business and industry annually spend a total of $30 billion on education and training, nearly equal to the annual expenditure for the country's publicly-financed colleges and universities.

"This massive investment in education by both the business and higher education sectors raises an important question: Isn't it time for both sectors to look together at ways in which they can better serve society?" President Lazerson asked.

"We, in higher education, recognize that we are in a new era and that we have complex management problems resulting from inflation and the scarcity of public funds. But I am confident that we can solve these problems and, at the same time, make the necessary changes to serve new needs. The changing needs of the economy are among the most important ones to which I believe higher education can respond," the president concluded.

Armed robbery at Mitchell bar

A young man in a hooded ski jacket and wearing a red ski mask over his face used a shotgun to rob a bartender at the By Pass Restaurant and Lounge (formerly the Orchid Lounge, Maryville and West

Chain of Rocks roads, of approximately $300 in cash and currency about 8:05 p.m. Tuesday.

The bartender, a 29-year-old woman, told Illinois State Police prosecutors that the young man entered, pointed the shotgun at her and ordered her to open the cash register. She complied and the man reached in the cash drawer and grabbed the money and change.

He ran outside to an older-model yellow car where a driver waited and they drove south on Maryville Road.

There were no injuries.

Increase in holiday drunk driver arrests

Illinois State Police officers arrested 66 drivers, charged with DUI (driving under the influence of alcohol) during the New Year's holiday period which started at midnight Dec. 31, 1981, and lasted until midnight Sunday, Jan. 3, 1982. During the same period last year, state police made 61 DUI arrests.

During the New Year's holiday period, Illinois had a total of five traffic fatalities compared to 15 fatalities in the same holiday period last year. None of these fatalities occurred in District 11, centered around Maryville.

Captain Laimutis A. Nargelenas, commander, District 11, has advised all uniformed personnel to further emphasize DUI enforcement.

It is one of the district's PFR goals (policing for results), a management program which was implemented July 1, 1981.

Also, special organized details will be set up to further emphasize DUI enforcement.

Capt. Nargelenas commented, "The new DUI law will assist us in getting the drunk driver off the road. Our viewpoint is that the problem drunk driver is everyone's problem."

Early history of area is reviewed by society

At the Old Six Mile Historical Society's January meeting, President Ron Coleman announced that more than 100 memberships have been sold and persons who join before May 31, 1982, will still be charter members of the organization.

The first newsletter of the year will be issued later this month. Under consideration for a fund-raising project is the sponsorship of an antique show, which would be held in either September or October. Various locations are being investigated and will be discussed at future meetings.

The original speaker for the evening, Mr. Rosenberg, was unable to attend. Mrs. Georgia Engelke spoke on the very early settlers of the area.

Mrs. Engelke remarked that her interest in the early history of the area started during our country's 200th birthday, the Bicentennial. Speaking about our glacial heritage, which goes back 35,000 years, she said there is a glacier monument in Alaska which contains three million acres of ice. Farmers in Southern Illinois put the blame for their killed cattle on the fact that the glacier did not extend down that far.

Indians came across the Bering Strait long ago and gained their names, "Indians," because Columbus thought he was in India when he got to America.

During our early history, Marquette and Joliet were in this area looking for a water route to the Pacific Ocean. Other names familiar to us are Cahokia, founded in 1699, and Chouteau Island, which was settled by the French in 1750. When LaCade and Chouteau founded St. Louis, there were 12,000 Indians in the area. By 1820, there were very few Indians left. After Chief Pontiac was killed in Cahokia, the remaining Indians killed each other, she contended.

An early settler was Patrick Henry who was the first Illinois Territory governor. A Captain Piggott of East St. Louis had the first ferry across the Mississippi. The first white man, Ephraim Conners lived near Peters Station.

Another early settler was James Gilliam, who came into the area during a search for his wife and children, who had been abducted by Indians in Kentucky. It took five years of searching before this family was reunited.

Liking this area, Gilliam, according to his descendant, Mrs. Engelke, persuaded his five brothers and two sisters to join him here. All of them had large families. In 1805, some of the Gilliams established a farm where the Udel Blachoffs now live, and the first brick house in Granite City was occupied by a Gilliam. According to records left by the Gilliams, in 1807, camp meetings were popular near Edwardsville. Families attended and even stayed for an entire week.

The monks who settled the area now known as Monk's Mounds were not successful and they left the area, returning to Pennsylvania, in 1811. While they were here, they helped the local farmers. They found coal in the bluffs, which could be used for fuel and they taught the farmers how to make gunpowder.

The New Madrid earthquakes in 1811 helped the cause of religion. Many, thinking the world was coming to an end, immediately joined the Methodist Church. In 1812, war broke out with England and the Indians in the area joined the British side. An early victim of the Indians was Mr. Price, who was killed while he was plowing. A blockhouse for the protection of the women and children was located where the present Parkway School is. This was for the Six Mile community. Later, a treaty with the Indians was signed on the site of the present Lewis and Clark Park.

According to Mrs. Engelke, it took a long time to build roads then, as well as now. The National Road, starting in Maryland, was supposed to terminate in St. Louis, but it was never completed. Agreement could not be reached on the question of whether to cross the river at Alton or at St. Louis.

Flu and a cholera epidemic wiped out many families in the 1840s and 1850s. The building of levees started in the 1860s, which helped many residents.

Twenty-five persons attended the meeting at Tri-Mor, R. E. Abels will be the speaker. The public is being invited.

Jazz combo concert at SIUE Monday

The sounds of dixieland, fusion, bebop and jazz singing will fill Meridian Hall at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Monday, Jan. 18, at 7:30 p.m.

The jazz combo concert will feature four groups composed of students and faculty. The dixieland combo will open the program with such selections as "Hello Dolly" and "Muskrat Ramble."

The combo, Septet II, will follow with five selections featuring a variety of jazz styles. The vocal combo, which combines musicians and vocalists, will perform such favorites as "The Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy." Septet I will finish the concert with another five selections of varying jazz styles.

The Jazz Combo Program at the university was established nearly two years ago and is directed by Brett Stamps. Currently, the program consists of eight performing combos. The other four combos — the Workshop Combo, Fusion group, Sextet and Jazz Faculty Combo — will perform in February. The concert, scheduled in Meridian Ballroom in the University Center, is free and open to the public.

Club organizes a flower fund

The Metro East Organ Society met this month at the home of Mrs. Barbara Williams with 11 members present. Mrs. Loretta Seigel, president, conducted the business meeting.

The group decided to establish a flower fund to be used when members are hospitalized for surgical purposes.

Several of the members reported on their trip to a location near Swansea to hear an area organist during the Christmas holidays.

"Name That Tune" was the musical game presented by each person in attendance. Five excerpts of music were played by each member, with the others guessing the name of the piece. Correct scores were recorded by the secretary, Mrs. Betty Ballentine, for each participant.

At the end of the year, the person with the best score will receive a prize. For the February meeting, each person is to play a number, the name of which starts with his initials or an "R" for February.

Mrs. Ballentine presented the new yearbooks to the members. Others in attendance were Mrs. Frances David, Mrs. Ann Austin, Mrs. Bea Black, Mrs. Helen DeChiara, Mrs. Mary Hartman, Mrs. Dorothy Alsop, Frank David and Howard Austin.

Guard against frostbite

Frostbite is a localized freezing reaction of skin and tissues to freezing temperatures, according to William L. Kempfers, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health. Ice crystals actually form in the tissues.

This occurs because freezing temperatures cause the tissues to constrict, thus decreasing the flow of blood and oxygen to the area. The reduced volume of warming blood flowing through the affected tissues lowers the tissue temperature, causing muscle weakness and decreased sensation.

The extent of damage to the tissue depends on the length of exposure to freezing temperatures and the promptness of treatment. There are two types of frostbite — superficial and deep. Superficial frostbite involves the fingertips, ears, nose or cheeks. Burning, tingling and numbness are primary symptoms.

Deep frostbite is more dangerous and involves hands and feet. The skin is white, cold and feels solid. When deep frostbite thaws, the skin rapidly changes colors to pink and then to bluish-purple. At this stage, the skin is painful and blisters may form. Blisters should be left intact and will rupture spontaneously at a later date.

Still hospitalized

Nancy Wargin, 28, Florissant, Mo., remains a patient at St. Elizabeth Medical Center after her auto was struck by a transport truck on the Interstate 270 bridge over the Chain of Rocks Canal a week ago.

She originally was admitted to the intensive care unit of the medical center and is expected to remain a patient for at least the rest of this week. She suffered multiple injuries when her auto stopped for other cars in the roadway and the truck skidded approximately 195 feet into her auto.

A chain-reaction accident followed which involved three other cars. The incident began with a stalled car in the roadway with its blinkers on, causing the other autos to stop.

1—Take the patient to a warm area to prevent further injury. The affected area should not be rubbed with anything, particularly snow or ice. Do not apply excessive heat to speed up warming of the area.

2—Remove any clothing that restricts circulation. 3—The frozen area should be immersed in a well-agitated warm water.

4—If the face and ears are affected, apply warm moist towels that are changed often to maintain temperature.

5—The patient may complain of pain and skin will become blotchy, red and swollen. This is the usual reaction to rewarming.

6—After soaking, apply a bulky dressing. Insert cotton pads between fingers or toes to prevent scraping of skin. Kempfers said that dressing properly when going out of doors in freezing weather will help prevent frostbite. "Wear several layers of light-weight clothing, as the air between the layers will act as insulation and keep you warmer," he said.

He said that coats should be water-repellent and hooded, with a cap or scarf worn under the hood. "Mittens will keep your hands warmer than fingered gloves will," he said, "and heavy socks worn under warm, sturdy boots will help protect your feet."

The following steps should be taken in treating possible frostbite.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON U.S.D.A. CHOICE GRAIN FED BEEF:

BOXED BEEF YOUR BEST BUY

HERE IS THE REASON WHY:

A new trend is sweeping the country in buying beef for home freezers. Swinging carcass beef is being replaced by vacuum packed beef portions in a box simply called Boxed Beef. With Boxed Beef you buy only the portions of the beef you want to serve your family.

All of the excess bone and waste plus seldom used cuts such as soup bones and boiling meat are trimmed away by skilled meat cutters in ultra-modern beef processing plants. After the beef portions are vacuum sealed with a patented process, the portion is boxed and shipped on refrigerated trucks direct to our meat locker.

Next time you're thinking of a large beef purchase for your home freezer or a special occasion, such as large cook-outs and parties, ask us about the quality, value and just plain good sense in our Boxed Beef program.

THE OLD WAY TO BUY BEEF.

We've all seen or heard of the hanging beef carcass that used to be transported by truck and transferred to meat coolers for cutting. Only skilled butchers could cut these carcasses properly, but even then there was 28 to 32 percent waste in unusable bone and fat. There are still some supermarkets that utilize hanging carcass beef, but the trend to Boxed Beef and its economies is sweeping the country.

DISADVANTAGES:

1. Excess bone and waste must be trimmed before cutting.
2. Thirty percent higher transportation cost is a waste of fuel energy.
3. Paying for 28 to 32 percent waste that never reaches your freezer.
4. Price per pound is less but take home meat is higher in cost.
5. Weight loss is due to open air exposure.

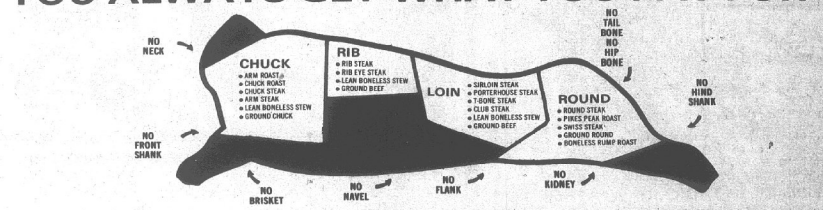

THE NEW WAY TO BUY BEEF.

Boxed Beef is only the usable portions of the carcass skillfully trimmed and packaged through ultra-modern processing, then vacuum sealed for speed of handling. Cutting these portions to desired roasts and steaks does not require a trained butcher. In fact, many housewives across the country prepare the boneless cuts to their own requirements right in their kitchens. What a fine way to get just exactly the cuts you need and save dollars on quality beef at the same time. However, on any Boxed Beef purchase you make with us we gladly cut and wrap it to your own specifications.

ADVANTAGES:

1. Boxed Beef is naturally aged, thanks to its patented vacuum wrapping.
2. More sanitary — less bacteria.
3. You buy meat without the surplus waste fat and bone.
4. You save money in buying meat instead of bone, fat and trimming.
5. Quality controlled beef. Only the best beef is selected to go in the Boxed Beef program.
6. You can buy only the part of the beef that you want.

The Chicago Symphony to play in St. Louis

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of its music director Sir Georg Solti, will make its Powell Symphony Hall debut in a concert at 8:30 p.m., Monday, Jan. 18. St. Louis is the Chicago Symphony's first stop on a two-week, eight-city tour. Works on the program are Ludwig van Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 in C major, Opus 21, and Anton Bruckner's Symphony No. 4 in E-flat major, "Romantic."

Founded by Theodore Thomas in 1891, the Chicago Symphony is the nation's fourth oldest symphony. Under Solti, it is today regarded as one of the world's foremost orchestras. Recent European and Japanese tours were played in "sold-out" houses before enthusiastic audiences. Its concerts in Chicago's Orchestra Hall are regularly sold out.

Solti has been Chicago's music director since 1969. This Hungarian-born conductor first made his mark in the opera world and is noted for his live presentations and recordings of Richard Wagner's operas. He has served as music director for the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden and the London Philharmonic. Solti was knighted in 1972 for his contributions to the musical arts.

Other stops on the Chicago Symphony's tour include Salt Lake City, Tucson and Tempe, Ariz., San Francisco, Los Angeles and Denver. This St. Louis appearance by the Chicago Symphony is the second in a series of three "Great Performances" concerts. The third will be Feb. 27 concert with violinist Isaac Stern, music director Leonard Slatkin and the Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Tickets for this upcoming performance are $8 to $20 each. Discounted rates of 25 percent off the regular ticket price are available to groups of 20 or more. Interested persons may call 1-314-533-2500, extension 293, for group information. 1-314-534-1700 for regular and student ticket information.

The program is sponsored by the Metro-East Chapter of the National Organization for Women as part of the monthly meeting.

"What women get to know about society and themselves is filtered through a male-controlled power structure—that is, male-owned publishing houses and shops and ... (therefore) male-defined ... resulting in serious consequences for women ... making it difficult, if not impossible, to get true, unbiased (information knowledge)," explains Professor Ruth.

She is associate professor of philosophy and director of Women's Studies at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Her book, "Feminism (Houghton-Mifflin, available at college bookstores)" is one of the most widely-used core textbooks for feminist studies in colleges and universities throughout the country. Her latest research interest is contemporary feminism as it relates to patriarchy and sex.

In addition to her other commitments, she conducts classes on assertiveness training for business and industry.

Forms for student aid now available at SIUE

Applications for financial assistance for the 1982-83 academic year at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville are now available from the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

According to John Jenette, director, students may pick up the necessary forms in Room 2008 of the Rensselaer Building or request them by telephone or mail.

Two forms are required to make application, Jenette said. In addition to the regular SIUE form for financial aid, students must complete the ACT-FPS (American College Testing Program-Family Financial Statement).

The ACT-FPS form can also be used to apply for Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC) monetary awards.

Information regarding all types of financial aid available to students who plan to attend SIUE during the 1982-83 academic year may be obtained by contacting the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance, SIUE, Box 90, Edwardsville, Ill. 62026 or by telephoning 1-692-3880.

Information on federal assistance may be obtained from area high school and college counselors; or by calling these toll-free numbers: 1-800-638-6700 for general financial aid information, and 1-800-423-6923 for information about Pell Grants (formerly the Basic Grant) and ISSC award applications.

Students planning to attend SIUE during the 1982-83 academic year and who can demonstrate financial need should apply before May 1, 1982, Jenette said.

2.6 million touch-tone telephones now in use

Some callers use a pencil eraser to punch out telephone numbers. Others use a three-finger "touch" system and can tap out a seven-digit number in less than two seconds. Most people, however, use either the second or third digit of the right hand to tap out the number.

Whatever method they use, nearly 70 percent of Illinois Bell residence and business customers make their calls on Touch-Tone phones—more than in any other Bell System operating company in the nation.

Illinois Bell reports that it now has 2.6 million Touch-Tone lines in service, providing customers with a host of Information Age benefits.

Touch-Tone permits faster dialing and provides almost instantaneous connections. The pad on the Touch-Tone phone can also be used like a computer terminal, giving customers access to computerized services.

Touch-Tone calling was introduced to Illinois Bell customers in May 1964 in Naperville and nine years later had been connected to more than a million lines served by the company.

Today, Touch-Tone is available to all Illinois Bell customers. In 1968, buttons with an asterisk and a number sign were added to the Touch-Tone keyboard. It was the addition of these buttons which made banking-by-phone and other such computer transactions possible.

Additional information is available from Myrna Martin Schulz at 1-692-3876.

Touch-Tone is the key to banking by phone, with the customer using the Touch-Tone buttons to enter data on such transactions as paying bills by a direct link into the bank's computer.

Merchants use Touch-Tone phones to verify customer information and Touch-Tone phones can be used to permit shoppers to order groceries and other merchandise without leaving home.

Touch-Tone will also have a prominent role in future services, when customers will be able to call and turn lights and appliances on and off and communicate with home information systems.

Touch-Tone calling, which operates electronically, uses dual-frequency tones and a keyboard of buttons—instead of a rotary dial—initiate calls into the Bell communications network.

As each button of a telephone number is pressed, a pair of tones transmits digital information from the Touch-Tone phone to an Illinois Bell switching office. When all the numbers have been pressed, the call is completed almost instantly.

Touch-Tone phones can be dialed twice as fast as rotary-dialed phones, with the average dialing time for local numbers with rotary dialing being 10 seconds, compared with five for Touch-Tone.

The time saved becomes even more significant when dialing the extra digits required by long distance, International Direct Dialing (IDD).

Hodge closes agency, but not his business

Orville Hodge of the Hodge Agency, a real estate and insurance firm, announced Tuesday that he has closed the agency's office in Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center, but will remain in the business of selling real estate and insurance.

Hodge said he will operate his business from his home, 3216 Carlson Ave., and the Hodge Agency's insurance claims will be processed through an affiliation with the Real Estate and Insurance of Granite City. He said the decision to close the Crossroads Plaza office was the result of his overhead and a desire to "take it a little easier, but I am not ready to retire," he said.

Hodge has been in the business for 51 years and his son, Bill Hodge, and grandson, Ricky Hodge, have followed him into the real estate business, part-time. The Hodge Agency has handled the sale of several prominent Granite City buildings, including the downtown Fleishman Building.

"Many friends have encouraged me not to retire and insisted I stay in the business. Although the agency office is closed, I don't want people to say, 'He gave it up.' I am still in business," he stated.

Business calls should be directed to his home phone, 452-5397.

Women's work in 1982

(Eighth in a series of 15 articles exploring "Working: Changes and Choices.")

Barbara B. Lazarus of Wellesley College argues that women have entered the workforce in unprecedented numbers, but that they still tend to be segregated in "women's" jobs. Copyright (c) 1981 by the Regents of the University of California.

By BARBARA B. LAZARUS. More than 50 percent of all American women between the ages of 16 and 65 work for pay, most of them because of economic necessity.

But despite all the media publicity about new work opportunities for women, women in the 1980's are still defined as much by their home responsibilities as by their paid jobs.

And despite the revolutionary increase in the percentage of women in the paid labor force, there has been no comparable revolution in the kinds of jobs women hold.

The majority of women are segregated in a small number of low-paying, low-status occupations with limited opportunities for advancement.

The result is that women workers today are struggling to make a living or build careers in a world still dominated by traditional attitudes toward women and work.

LOOK BACK. The truth is, of course, that women have always worked. But the identification of "work" with paid labor is relatively recent.

Throughout America's agricultural period, most of men's and women's work was an unpaid contribution to sustaining the family.

The Industrial Revolution took "work" out of the home and defined it by pay. At the turn of the century and until the late 1930's, the government defined "workers" as those in the paid labor market above age six—later restricting it to those between the ages of 16 and 65.

This definition helped to obscure the general work contributions of women, which often were not for pay. However, it was really the definition of appropriate sex roles that effectively removed "women's work" from the definition of working.

It was men who "worked" at and were judged by, paid jobs. Being a successful man—a husband and a father—meant being a good economic provider.

But regardless of whether or not a woman worked outside the home, being a good wife, mother and housekeeper.

Fair or not, the responsibilities and roles were clear: Managing the needs of home and family was not "work." Being on a paid job was.

Thus one hears, "My grandfathers were farmers, my father is a lawyer, but none of the women in my family has ever worked."

WOMEN WORKERS TODAY. Even under this restricted definition of "work," women's roles have changed greatly over the past several generations, in large part because of increased life expectancy and changing economic and social patterns.

Today, more women work for pay for longer periods of time than in the past. In 1900, the average life expectancy was less than 50 years, most of them occupied with childbearing. A woman spent an average of only six years in the paid market. Today, when the average woman lives past 75, she spends over 25 years in paid work.

In 1928, the average woman worker was 28, single, and a high school graduate. Today she is 36 and married. The more education she has, the more likely she is to be working for pay.

From 1950 to 1975, a total of 11.5 million married women entered the labor force. And the number of working mothers has increased nine times since 1940.

By the end of the 1980's, it is expected that close to 70 percent of all women will be working.

Most women have entered the paid labor force for the same reasons as men: they need the money.

Women's work in the 1970's were single heads of household a reflection of later marriages and the fact that one out of three marriages today ends in divorce.

And almost 30 percent of working women were married to men who earned less than $15,000 a year.

WOMEN'S WORK IN THE MARKET. Although the reasons for women working are the same as men's, their roles in the labor market are very different.

Most women today work in the lowest paying occupations. The average woman's earnings are less than three-fifths of the average man's.

Less than 7.5 percent of all women earn over $15,000, compared to 40 percent of men. And a woman is two-and-a-half times more likely than a man to end up poverty-stricken.

More than 400 occupations are listed by the Bureau of the Census, but most women are employed in 20.

One-fourth of all women work as secretaries, stenographers, bookkeepers, elementary school teachers, or waitresses.

While women are more apt than men to be white-collar workers, the jobs they hold are usually less skilled.

Women as professionals and technical workers are most likely to be teachers and health workers, mostly at the lower levels.

While women constitute more than 40 percent of the labor force, only one-fifth of managers and administrators are women, and women hold only one percent of top management jobs.

About one-seventh of women workers have blue-collar jobs, compared to one out of two men. But only five percent of skilled crafts workers are women.

Women are twice as likely as men to be service workers.

Obviously, some progress has been made, particularly in the professions. Notwithstanding, the current statistical picture does not yet reflect a dramatic change in the position of women in the paid market.

While the substantially increased percentage of women now training for nontraditional jobs in the trades and professions may change this picture in the future, it is too soon to tell whether these increases represent a permanent advance for women or will be a temporary aberration.

WOMEN'S WORK IN THE HOME. Women's lives are still complicated by the traditional understanding of "women's work."

The dramatic shift in the role of women in paid work has not been matched by a similar shift in home-based work responsibilities.

Although fewer women are full-time homemakers, women are still expected to have the major—if not the sole—responsibility for home and family.

Women rarely share equally in household and family responsibilities. On the contrary, women spend approximately four times as many hours as men in home and family work.

And with the rising divorce rate, an increasing percentage of women have sole responsibilities for all home-based work.

The burden of rearing children today may help explain why the birthrate in the late 1970's was half that of 1957.

NEW QUESTIONS FOR THE 1980's. Today, women "workers" are faced with complicated new questions—not "Will I work?" but, "Where will I work?" "Will I get or stay married?" "Will I have children?" And, "How will I manage it all?"

Women with the least skills have the fewest options. But even professional women face problems of role stereotypes.

After all, a man who is a doctor is simply a "doctor," but a woman is a "woman doctor."

One very language highlights the exceptional nature of her work and her double responsibilities as homemaker and "worker."

Unattached professional women may have fewer daily demands on them, but they may be viewed as unsuccessful "women."

Women in high-status positions may have another disadvantage. Traditionally, a man could devote himself to establishing a career because someone else—usually his wife—provided a comfortable home and managed the social arrangements necessary to success on the job.

Without a "wife," women may find it difficult to follow the traditional path to success.

Answering today's critical questions about women and work will necessitate radical changes in the definition of "men's work" as well as changes in work structures and social attitudes.

Career counseling, new education and training programs, part-time jobs or flexible hours and quality child care are only a few of the changes needed.

But one thing is clear: While the answer may not be easy—and the changes they bring may be unsettling—something must be done.

Jobs and home and family cannot all be "women's work." No one has the time to do it all.

VFW Auxiliary plans

Plans for various events in February, including two suppers, were made at Tuesday night's meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1300 Auxiliary at the VFW Hall, 2044 Washington Ave. Shirley Champion, president, was in charge.

In other business, Donna Warfield was elected junior vice-president and Mary K. Calkin was elected two-year trustee. They were installed by Ollie Conaway, past president.

Cleo Schnefke, Americanism chairman, said a "sodima" supper is planned Feb. 7 at the VFW Hall.

Mrs. Schnefke also reported the presentation of a flag to Boy Scout Troop 3 at its court of honor Monday night. A second flag purchased by the auxiliary will be used at meetings and in parades, she said.

Lavern Mull was asked to serve as chairman of a spaghetti supper, scheduled Feb. 13, and plans were made for a meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 9.

A holiday party for children, complete with Santa, Indian dancers, gifts and clowns, was highly successful. Linda Cain, youth activities chairman, announced.

Gifts and stockings also were presented to patients in the pediatrics ward at St. Elizabeth Medical Center and at an orphanage in Alton, Mrs. Cain advised.

Seventy persons were entertained during the holidays with a kitchen band, clowns, Santa and gifts at the Alton Mental Health Center. It was reported by Mrs. Conaway, hospital chairman.

At the event, dinner was served and fruit and candy were distributed. The local auxiliary is planning another trip to the center Jan. 19, it was announced.

80th birthday for Mr. Stark

Mrs. Evelyn (McDonald) Stark, 2459 Adams St., celebrated her 80th birthday last week at a party hosted by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Stark.

Hors d'oeuvres, followed by a buffet dinner and a cake, were served at the Maynard Stark home, 2717 Sunset Drive.

Among the guests were a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Velmor Stark and Renee, and a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy (Thelma) Moreland and Dennis and Debra Moreland. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Val Stark and Michelle and Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McDonald, Joe Doan, Lynn Carroll, Kim Whiteside of Washington and the host couple's children, Elizabeth, Maynard and Angela Stark.

Drunk driving arrests climb

Secretary of State Jim Edgar said Tuesday that preliminary information indicates Illinois' new drunk driving law is responsible for an increase of more than 20 percent in DUI (driving while under the influence) arrests for the first 11 days of 1982, compared to 1981.

"The goal of the new drunk driving law is to get more drunk drivers off the road and, from preliminary indications, the new law is working well," Edgar said. "Law enforcement officers tell me the new law also has lived up to its promise of reducing the processing time of alcohol-related arrests by at least half the time it took under the old law. The time will be reduced even more when officers become more familiar with the new procedures and forms."

Edgar said his office has received favorable information from the Illinois State Police and a number of county and municipal police departments. "The Illinois State Police have arrested almost 24 percent more drunk drivers for the first 11 days of 1982 — from 131 in 1981 to 160 in 1982," he said. "The city of Peoria, for example, has had twice as many arrests for 1982 (18) as for the first week of 1981 (9). In Champaign, there were three DUI arrests for the first week of 1982 and seven for 1981. The city of Quincy had 6 in 1981, and 8 in 1982.

"It is still too early to tell what effect the new law is having on fatalities, injuries and accidents, but with an increase of more than 20 percent in DUI arrests, it would appear there may be fewer DUI-related fatalities, injuries and accidents as a result of the new law."

Edgar said publicity for the new law also has had a deterrent effect. "Police officers have also told me many potential drunk drivers have stayed off the road due to the heavy publicity the new law received around the time of the year," Edgar said.

How exports stack up For predominantly agricultural countries, the share of the three most important commodities in export earnings ranges from roughly 70 percent for Ghana, Ivory Coast and Sri Lanka to about 50 percent for Malaysia and Senegal and under 40 percent for Thailand, the World Bank reports.

NEW POLICY

All wedding questionnaire forms must be completed and returned to the Press-Record office, 1815 Delmar Ave., two weeks prior to the wedding. If possible, photographs should accompany the form or, if taken at the ceremony, must be submitted to the office within 30 days of the wedding date. Both engagement and wedding questionnaire forms are available at the Press-Record office, and will be mailed upon request. Wedding forms submitted after the deadline will be shortened to include only the basic information.

Holiday events for Troop 7

Boy Scout emblems and an eagle for flagpoles were presented to Troop 7 at a party held during the holidays in the meeting room at St. Joseph Catholic Church, the unit's sponsoring organization. Refreshments were served by parents of troop members.

Star Scout Mark Brazel hosted the event, which featured a treasure hunt, egg toss, water relay race, volleyball, a "song" show and a movie, "The Three Monks," a project of Brother Robert Manzer, scoutmaster.

An outing to view the 12th annual Way of Lights at Our Lady of the Snows Shrine in Belleville, together with a puppet show and a treat at a restaurant, also were part of the holiday activities. Joseph Piner, Robert Hagen and Stephen Kusmierzczak supervised transportation.

Honor the late Edward Erney

The National Association for Retired Federal Employees, Granite City Chapter 1067, met at noon, Monday at Charlie's Restaurant for the regular luncheon meeting.

The meeting was opened with a moment of silence in memory of Edward Erney, who was first vice-president, charter member and founder of the local organization. Mrs. Tharah Erney, Chaplain, read a special prayer.

President Larry Hengehold gave the legislative report based on the present CPI and discussed the health insurance program. An audit committee report was given by William Breidenbach.

President Hengehold appointed 1982 committee chairman — Mayme Vallow, sunshine; Georgina McMillan and Francis Hoppe, service officers; Dorothy Sheppard, program and entertainment; and Helen Todoroff, publicity. Five birthdays and three anniversaries were acknowledged for the month of January. President Hengehold appointed Mrs. Tharah Erney to fill the unexpired term of first vice-president.

There were 54 in attendance and Mr. Art Meier won the special prize. The next regular meeting will be held at 11:30 a.m. Feb. 8 at Charlie's Restaurant.

Cancer not letting up In 1980 the deaths of 7 out of 10 ordinary life-insurance policyholders were due to two principal causes: cardiovascular-renal diseases and cancer. The proportion of cancer deaths continued to increase: 23.2 percent of policyholder deaths were caused by cancer.

TRIP SPONSOR, Morris B. Chapman, center, presents a check to Venice residents to help finance a delegation going to Washington, D.C., tomorrow to participate in a march urging Congress to make Jan. 15 a holiday recognizing the birthday of the late Venice City Hall, Chaplain and Nick Hamilos of Hamilos Meat Co. were among the sponsors of the local three-member. Other donors asked to remain anonymous. A special meeting of the POBCV will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 23, in the Venice Recreation Center.

Ainad Compacts install officers

Roger Vail was installed as president of the Ainad Compacts, a motorcycle unit of Ainad Shrine Temple, based in the Quad-Cities, at its annual installation dinner party during the weekend.

The event was held in the Non-Commissioned Officers Club at the Granite City Army Installation. E. Gene Ross served as master of ceremonies.

Officers installed with Vail for 1982 were: Gene Payne, vice president; John Helton, secretary; Al Woodard, treasurer; and Jerry Adams, captain. In addition to the Compacts' members and their wives, several invited guests were in attendance, including Ainad Shrine Potentate Don Adams.

Other members of the Ainad Divan present were Mark Moreton, Irv Slate Jr., Jack Dempsey, Gene Tracy, Wayne Banks and Dick Erva.

Following the dinner and ceremonies, music for dancing was furnished by the "Country Music Machine."

Fatalities in state decline

Provisional figures released by R. J. Miller, superintendent of the Illinois State Police, indicate that during the month of December, there were 136 traffic fatalities in Illinois. The provisional statewide total of 1,350 for the year, is 14 less than last year.

Captain Laimutus A. Nargelinas, commander of District Eleven, stated that during the month of December there were 10 traffic accident fatalities in the district, a total of 131 for the year, which is two less than last year.

Captain Nargelinas said, "one of these lives saved may have been yours. Obedience to all traffic laws is a very important factor in reducing traffic accident fatalities, and I will emphasize strict enforcement of all traffic laws by my officers."

The shows, which are a part of the winter quarter video series, will be shown in the Video Lounge on the second floor of the University Center. Students and public are being invited. Admission is free.

Hall still Nameoki collector after closed session of board

The Nameoki Township Board of Trustees went into executive session to discuss the position of township tax collector that some members see as a duplication of the county treasurer's duties.

The closed session was attended by recently installed collector Norman Hall, who said the meeting resulted in no changes in his intentions to hold the position until the end of February, when the board's fiscal year ends. The position of tax collector has already been budgeted under the township's fiscal year.

At the start of his term Jan. 1, Hall said he would try to determine if the township tax collector could be used to speed taxes to local taxing bodies. He contended that problems have occurred with slow distributions at the county level in the past. As a former member of the Granite City Board of Education, he remembered voting to borrow large sums in anticipation warrants to continue operating the schools until the county treasurer released some of the taxes in his possession.

The tax collector said he intends to give Nameoki trustees a complete analysis of his intended investigation into the savings an efficient collector could provide.

Trustee Helen Hawkins, who ran on the same political slate as Hall last year, said the board understood the position would be filled at least until the end of the fiscal year, which is next month.

The position had been budgeted at $7,300 per year but provision for $1,000 to go to an assistant collector and about $1,100 for other expenses. Mrs. Hawkins said the position of assistant collector has usually been given to family members of collectors in the past.

"Former collectors have had good intentions and worked hard but it hasn't panned out," Mrs. Hawkins said. She said she initially supported keeping the position of tax collector, but when the state remained firm in giving all tax collecting duties to the county treasurer, she changed her mind.

"If anyone can bring a change, Norman Hall can, but I don't think anybody can in two months," Mrs. Hawkins said.

In open session, the Nameoki Township Board of Trustees has helped organize a citizens' committee of East Madison and Cloverleaf Addition residents interested in forming their own fire protection district. Fire protection was provided by the Madison Fire Department, but that city has announced that it will cut off services to Nameoki Township residents.

Madison is concerned about $20,000 in past unpaid fire call bills — some dating back to 1971 — from the East Madison-Cloverleaf area. Madison has given the Nameoki Board a two-page list of the names and addresses of those who have not paid for fire bills.

The board will turn over the list to township assessor Carl Maclos, who is to attempt to locate the owners of real property where unpaid fire calls were made. A trustee said that if owners do not then respond, the bills will be turned over to the state attorney's office.

The 10-member citizens' group will circulate petitions among residents in the East Madison-Cloverleaf area which ask the state fire marshal to temporarily assign that section to a fire district for protection.

Residents in that area met Saturday to discuss the problem and planned to meet again this week to further plan the petition drive.

Annual eagle count Saturday

A specialized bird count, conducted in recent years, is the one-day bald eagle census Saturday in the valley of the Mississippi and some of its major tributaries. This is managed by eagle expert Elton Fawks of East Moline, Ill.

Fawks is one of the eagle watchers around Southwest Wisconsin who, late in 1970, organized the Eagle Valley Environmentalists, Inc., to preserve a bald eagle winter-roosting area used by the eagles. His address is P.O. Box 18, Platteville, Wis. 53181.

Major concentration points for the wintering eagles of the Mississippi Valley are found below the navigation locks where dams have been built in the rivers. Fishing is good in these areas.

In addition, several such areas are near enough to waterfowl hunting areas to provide the eagles with crippled ducks as an added food source. Among those participating in the count are county masters, wildlife biologists, and amateur bird watchers.

Such eagle counts have special interest because of the national bird's status as an endangered species.

Fluctuations in annual census figures may help detect any sudden trends, either up or down, in the eagle populations. They are, consequently, of interest to the National Audubon Society, which has been a leader in eagle research for many years, and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which is responsible for the country's endangered wildlife programs.

Anyone interested in going on the Eagle Count on Saturday should dress warmly, bring a sack lunch and meet at the top of the levee of Jefferson Barracks Bridge at 9 a.m. The group will travel about 50 miles to Fort Chartres, where it will eat inside the museum and hear Edward Dahlhoff, who is affiliated with the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, talk about eagles. More information is available from Ruth Jensen, 931-1352.

POLICE TAKE PISTOL FROM MAN IN HOME

Floyd Smith, 29, of 2128 Bryan Ave. was arrested there at 2 a.m. Tuesday for aggravated assault and disorderly conduct and also was booked for resisting arrest. He was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center for a cut on the head, and two officers received minor hand injuries.

There was extensive damage inside the home when they arrived in response to a disturbance report, police said. They alleged he voiced threats to them and picked up a pistol which then was wrested from him.

Robbery charge names bus driver

Allen M. Boyd, 28, a Bi-State transit system bus driver, has been charged with robbing a frequent passenger.

Appearing in court at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Granite City, Boyd, of 4014 Broadway, Venice, was advised of his rights. His bond was continued at $50,000 and he was returned to jail.

It was alleged that the passenger, Evan Evans of the 2600 block of Highway Three, not only was robbed Jan. 6 but also was forced off the bus while he was trying to go to his place of employment in St. Louis. His wallet containing $80 was taken from him, it was learned.

Evans boarded the bus at 10th and State streets at 8:05 p.m. Jan. 6. Two men grabbed him as he sat down, and held him, police were told.

A third man, allegedly the driver of the bus, took the wallet from Evans and then ordered him off the bus at 18th and State, the victim related.

Evans was unhurt, and no weapon was displayed.

Police launched an extensive investigation, including checking of bus travel on the evening of the robbery. Efforts to trace the particular bus included verification of the timing of bridge crossings, it was learned.

The arrest of Boyd occurred at 10 a.m. Friday. No other suspects had been taken into custody at midweek, and the investigation is proceeding.

Expanded reading classes seek more library books

At a time when some communities are fighting to take books off library shelves and out of the classrooms, the people in one small Southern Illinois school district are determined to buck the trend. They want to add all the books they can find and reward the kids who read them.

Dubbed "FOR-U" for Focus on Reading Understanding, the idea started a year ago in the Cahokia School District with a federal grant to the Teacher Corps at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"Under the plan, the kids pick the books they want to read and earn membership in the FOR-U Club after they finish the first 10," said Joan Barnes, coordinator. The more books they read, the more certificates they earn and the bigger the award grows.

The idea seemed sound, but when 400 kids in the six participating schools from elementary to senior high signed up and read up to 100 books each, desperate volunteer teachers asked the entire community to help find more.

"People cleaned out their attics and dropped the paperbacks and hard copies off at way stations all over the district," said Val Meyer, SIUE education professor who set up the voluntary program.

To stay ahead of the supply problems, she also sent a letter to service clubs asking for help. "They raised $600 to buy more books and continue to support the program including the Cahokia Women's Club that shares profits from its monthly 50-50 raffle," she said.

Parents who were surprised to find their children picking up a book at home called the school to find out what they could do to help.

They got a "tip sheet" for parents and an invitation to come to school, Professor Meyer said. Many now feel comfortable there and regularly visit the classrooms they once shunned, she said.

At Lalumier Elementary School in Centerville, reading is so important, everything else stops at 3:15 on Monday afternoons so the entire school can do nothing else.

Principal Howard Hudson, the secretaries, any lingering custodians and all the teachers join students for a half hour of the "silent enjoyment."

"It gives me a chance to catch up on the journals or a new novel," Hudson said. "I usually go out in the hall while I'm more visible."

The newest reading advocates are the mayors of the four towns in the school district, Alorton, Centerville, Cahokia and Sauget. They will promote leisurely reading by declaring Reading Week in their communities during the first week in February.

To make it official, Mayors Callie Mobley Owens, Michael King and Paul Sauget will sign proclamations after sharing a reading luncheon with administrators, teachers, reading committee, council and school board members Jan. 12 at Bonanza Restaurant on Camp Jackson Road.

With all that help, Professor Meyer expects to see a measurable improvement in the reading skills of all club members by the end of the school year.

The students will be tested and compared with their own reading ability before they join the club and with students in other Cahokia district schools that are not participating in the FOR-U program.

Whatever the results, the community may have to support the entire program if they want to keep it after May, said Mrs. Barnes. FOR-U is in the second year of a proposed five-year plan, but it is expected to be a casualty of new federal budget cuts.

Before that happens, Professor Meyer wants to see reading for the enjoyment and pleasure it brings planted so deeply in Cahokia that it will continue to grow despite the cuts.

That would be proof of the ultimate success of the program, she said.

Pleads guilty in fatal shooting

Calvin "Cookie" Branch, 24, of 136 Garesche Homes, Madison, pleaded guilty Monday to fatally shooting Arnold Turner, 21, of Kirkwood, Mo., in the head during a disturbance in the El Capalero Lounge, 800 Jackson St., Madison, Sept. 17.

Circuit Judge Philip J. Harick, who accepted the guilty plea, ordered a presentence investigation into Branch's criminal background. Sentencing will take place in about 30 days, the judge said.

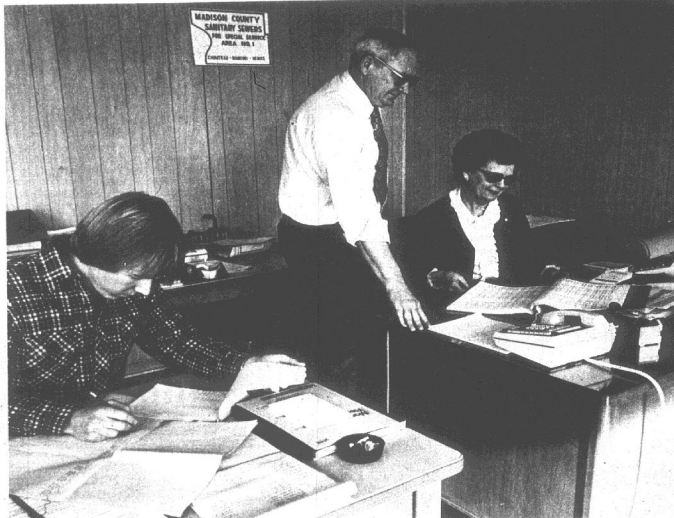

Court records indicate that an armed robbery charge against Branch, stemming from an Aug. 14, 1981, armed robbery, was previously dismissed by Judge Harick on a motion from the state's attorney's office. The two charges are not related, records show.

Branch is being held in the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville in lieu of $300,000 bond.

The shooting took place inside the tavern. Mr. Turner was shot in the left side of his head with a large caliber weapon, believed to be a .38-caliber pistol. The murder weapon was not initially found. Mr. Turner was declared dead upon arrival at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Branch was arrested at his home a short time later.

Congressional map is approved; address objection

By BILL WINTER of the Press-Record

Boundaries for the new 21st Congressional District, in which Cong. Melvin Price will seek a 20th consecutive two-year term this year, were approved along with those of the 21 other new Illinois districts Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court.

In a one-sentence ruling, the high court affirmed the dismissal of a challenge filed by Illinois House Speaker George Ryan and other legislators, and rejected a related challenge by Cong. Robert McClory, Lake Bluff Republican.

Objectors had said the reapportionment excessively favored Democrats and that some of the district lines created twisted shapes that constituted "impermissible gerrymandering."

The number of Illinois districts is being trimmed from 24 to 23 due to population gains that did not keep pace with the national trend.

The Alton area has been added to the former 23rd District, as the 21st, it will include all of Madison County and most of St. Clair County, except for a population area of St. Clair County, added to the new 22nd District, aiding Cong. Paul Simon. Price and Simon are Democrats.

The reapportionment has been affirmed, sponsored by Illinois House Minority Leader Michael Madigan, Chicago Democrat, places both Cong. George O'Brien, R-Joliet, and Cong. Edward Derwinski, R-Flossmoor, in the new 4th District.

It also pairs Cong. John Edward Porter, R-Evanston, and Cong. Sidney Yates, D-Chicago, in the new 8th District but Porter plans to move to the new 10th and oppose McClory in the March 16 primary election. The general election will take place Nov. 2.

A three-judge federal court in Chicago had approved the plan Nov. 23. The Illinois House and Senate earlier adopted conflicting maps and failed to reach a compromise.

The appeal that was turned down Monday contended that more attention should have been given to the political boundaries between Chicago and its suburbs.

Instead, challengers argued, the judges lumped city and suburban areas together in a way that will underscore and maintain Chicago's political power.

Objectors also said the redistricting discriminated against suburban blacks by putting them in districts with city blacks, diluting their power to influence House elections in the suburbs.

As noted, Cong. Price, who is 77 years old, is seeking reelection. Also filing in the 21st were two other Democrats, and a Republican.

One of the Democratic rivals is Mrs. Sandra Climaco, 29, a Belleville nurse. Her husband, Cesar Climaco, filed an objection to Price's candidacy during the weekend, saying the veteran congressman does not live at the address that appears on his statement of candidacy.

Cong. Price basically resides in Washington, due to the nearly year-round nature of Congressional sessions, but returns to this area frequently.

A spokesman in his office said he is registered to vote at 426 N. 8th St., East St. Louis, a residence which he rents. He sometimes has stayed at a Belleville area motel when he is in the local district.

A State Board of Elections official said the law requires candidates to be registered voters at the address appearing on the statement of candidacy accompanying their election petitions. He added there is no state or federal requirement that a congressman live there.

A hearing on the address objection may be held by a panel of judges in counties within the district in the next several days.

Both the Belleville physician and his wife are strong opponents of abortions and this is expected to be made an issue in the campaign.

Also running in the Democratic primary is Floyd Fenster Jr., 29, of Alton, a Shell Oil Co. operating engineer. The lone Republican candidate is Robert H. Gaffney, 48, of Greenville, St. Louis Community College's community relations director.

Although some of his opponents in various campaigns have sought to make his age an issue, Cong. Price continues to log considerable mileage assessing defense capabilities in foreign countries.

Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, he is leading a delegation of the committee's members and their wives on a 12-day, six-nation trip through South America (Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Peru), and Mexico. They are to return to the U.S. this weekend.

The group is conferring with military and political leaders on strategic matters and possible arms sales, and also will discuss the El Salvador outlook.

William Hart, an aide to Cong. Price, said the committee is concerned with the role, extent and impact of Cubans' involvement in Latin American countries and the flow of Communist armament into that part of the world.

The spouses pay for their meals and certain other costs, while the federal government finances most of the congressman's expenses on official committee trips.

State police pledge to enforce drinking laws

DOWN COAT STOLEN
A tan $150 down coat owned by Ron Ruebhausen of Troy, Ill., was stolen from his parked truck in the 2700 block of Nameeki Road Tuesday evening.

FREED ON CASH BAIL
Mike Skinner, 18, of 3327 Princeton posted $102 cash bail and was released Monday after being booked on a Troy, Ill., warrant alleging possession of liquor.

Captain Laimutus A. Nargelenas, Commander of state police, District Eleven, said, "If we are to have an impact on getting the drunk drivers off the road, it becomes necessary that all laws pertaining to the sale or possession of alcohol be strictly enforced."

The Illinois State Police will continue strict enforcement of the D.U.I. law and drinking or possession of alcohol by minors, he said.

His comments come in the wake of a crackdown by state troopers and Local Law enforcement officers on gambling and under age drinking at Mike's Tavern, in Waterloo, Ill.

Last Friday, at about 11:50 p.m., Sgt. Paul M. Stoke and five other State Police officers, working in cooperation with the Waterloo police officers and Monroe County Sheriff's Department, arrested 11 subjects who were charged with gambling, unlawful sale of alcohol to minors and unlawful possession of alcohol by minors.

Acting on information received from Waterloo city officials of alleged gambling and underage drinking at Mike's Tavern, three State Police officers working undercover, entered the tavern at about 7:30 p.m.

At approximately 11:50 p.m., uniformed officers entered the tavern and charged the owner, Michael Allgave, with unlawful sale of alcohol to a minor. Three minors were charged with unlawful possession of alcohol and four subjects were charged with gambling. One man was charged with, unlawful delivery of alcohol to a minor and two were charged with obstructing a police officer. All were from Waterloo and nearby communities.

Fee, rent hikes likely at SIUE

Due to increasing costs, SIUE administrators are expected to recommend fee hikes for the University Center and the Textbook Service, plus an increase of about $11 (from $219 to $230) in the monthly rent paid by residents of Tower Lake campus apartments.

Tuition boosts of about 15 percent also are under consideration.

Preliminary departmental budgets are being assembled prior to a deadline tomorrow. Fee changes would be effective in August 1982.

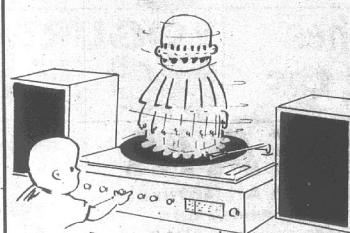

Rent factors being cited are pay raises of six to seven percent, utility increases of 14 to 16 percent, and a state-ordered loss of tuition retention funds.

Full-time students pay $35.50 per quarter to help support operation of the University Center building. This may rise to $39.

Also being studied is an increase in the fee that supports the intercollegiate athletic program.

Five units of SIUE plan no fee boosts.

HIS AND HERS IRA'S. JUST A COUPLE OF THINGS MULTIPLY FASTER.

With an Illini Retirement Account two times two can equal millions!

For example, two employed spouses each putting $2,000 a year into separate IRAs for 40 years can retire with $4,260,050, assuming a constant 12% interest rate.

But becoming millionaires at retirement is only one of the multiple benefits. During those 40 years, the couple's taxable income will be reduced by $4,000 a year and they'll pay no taxes on the interest earned. Taxes are paid only when they begin using the money at age 59½ or later. While that money is accumulating, each account will be protected by the FSILC, an agency of the U.S. Government.

Illini offers both fixed and variable rate IRAs, both insured by the FSILC. And unlike many IRAs, there are absolutely NO service charges when you establish an Illini Retirement Account. For all the details, drop by your nearby Illini Federal office.

IHSA makes assignments for cage regionals

BLOOMINGTON — Pairings for this year's Class A and Class AA boys prep basketball state tournaments have been released by the Illinois High School Association. And some interesting matchups could develop.

Granite City North will host its own Class AA (large school) regional. Teams entered besides the Steelers will include Edwardsville, Wood River (currently ranked 13th in the state by the Associated Press) and Roxana. Granite City South will be entered in the Collinsville Class AA Regional. Other teams entered there will include East St. Louis, East St. Louis Lincoln (ranked ninth by AP) and the host Collinsville Kahoks

(currently ranked fourth in the state by AP). Winners from Collinsville and Granite City north will join regional champions from Belleville East and Alton at the East St. Louis Senior Class AA Sectional Tournament. Teams entered at Belleville East will be Cahokia, Belleville Alhoff, Belleville West (ranked eighth by AP) and Belleville

East. Teams entered at Alton will be Civic Memorial of Bethalto, Jerseyville, Taylorville and Alton. In Class A (small school — enrollment of 749 or less) regional action, it appears that the toughest regional in the state could once again include two Press-Record area teams — defending state champion Madison and Venice, the 1975 state champ. They will be entered in the eight-team Dupo regional, along with East St. Louis Assumption (ranked 20th by AP), Lovejoy of Brooklyn, Belleville St. Henry, Columbia, Dupo and Metro East Lutheran. The winner of the Dupo Regional will advance to the Vandalia Sectional, along with regional champions from Alton, Hillsboro and Staunton. Teams entered at Alton include St. Elmo, Vandalia (ranked 13th by AP), Ramsey, Patoka, Kinmundy-Alma, Farina LaGrove, Brownstown and Alton. At Hillsboro, teams entered will be Greenville, Highland St. Paul, Hillsboro, Lebanon, Mulberry Grove, Triad, Wesclin (Trenton) and Witt. At Staunton, teams entered include Alton Marquette, Bunker Hill (ranked 26th by AP), Gillespie, Litchfield, Livingston, Mount Olive, Staunton and Worden. Other Regionals. Teams from Southern Illinois will compete in four other Class AA regionals and in 12 other Class A regionals. Class AA regionals will be held at Mattoon, Murphysboro, Harrisburg and

Highland. The winners will meet in the Southern Sectional with the winner of that tournament to face the East St. Louis winner in the Class A Super-Sectional in Carbondale at the SIU Arena. At Highland, teams entered will include Effingham (a state finals qualifier (Continued on Page 22))

Trojans cruise to easy win over Pirates

DUPO — The score of the game doesn't always tell the story. Like last night's game between Madison and Pattonville, Mo.

Madison had no trouble at all defeating Pattonville, 68-56 in the Dupo Invitational Basketball Tournament. One could never tell by their 12 point victory margin.

In a game in which they never trailed, Madison had as big of lead as 23 points. Going into the fourth quarter, the Trojans were winning by 21 points.

Turnovers, poor shooting, and fouls plagued Madison throughout the fourth quarter, enabling Pattonville to cut the deficit to 12 points. Fourteen out of the 24 points Pattonville scored in the fourth quarter were free throws.

Except for the fourth quarter, Larry Graham, Madison's head coach, felt the team played well. "We substituted a lot and had a lot of different players in the game in the fourth quarter," Graham said. "We made some mistakes — some bad decisions passing. "I thought we played better than we had been playing — especially the first half," Graham said.

Madison completely dominated the game the first quarter, outscoring Pattonville 20-6. Pattonville was troubled with cold shooting and the inability to stop Madison's inside-outside scoring attack.

Pattonville made only six field goals the first half. Madison was partly responsible for Pattonville's shooting problems, however, as the Trojan's aggressive defense and domination of the boards didn't allow Pattonville many second chance scoring opportunities.

Pattonville made only 14 field goals the entire game. Free throws were their only offensive bright spot. Connecting on 26 out of 34 free throw opportunities, Pattonville shot 83 percent from the line.

"I think they're better shooters than how they shot tonight," Graham said.

"They were pretty tight. I just don't think they were that bad of a team."

Graham was pleased with the performance of his five starters. The scoring was evenly distributed between the five players, with each player showing moments of brilliance.

Shannon Manson led all scorers with 14 points. Mark Zarr added 12 points and pulled down a game high 16 rebounds. Billy Papa and Mark Madgett each contributed 10 points. Madison's other starter, Carvell Claggett, scored eight points.

In only his second game of the season, Kevin Brown, a 6'8 senior, scored nine points for Madison. Brown has been eligible since last Friday night's game against East St. Louis Assumption.

Pattonville was led in scoring by Bobby Benben with 13 points. Eleven of his points came from free throws, as he missed only one shot from the line. Mike Quigley added 11 points, on nine out of 11 shooting from the line.

Even though Graham feels Madison's shooting, blocking out, and passing skills have improved throughout the season, he still believes the team has room for improvement.

"We're coming around," Graham said. "We need to win. Our whole program is structured around winning basketball. If we lose, we don't know what to do."

Madison, the defending champions of the Dupo Invitational, will play in the championship game Friday at 8:30 p.m. They will face the winner of the Ritenour of St. Louis vs. Columbia game, which will be played tonight at 8 p.m.

North wrestlers stay undefeated

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City North wrestling Steelers continued their dominance over area squads here Wednesday night with a crushing 42-0 dual meet Gateway East Conference victory over Belleville Alhoff. The victory by the Steelers runs their dual meet record to 14-0 on the season.

The Steelers did it Wednesday in typical style — with balance up and down the lineup. "That's what's so important to us this season," said North head coach Walt Whitaker. "Our balance. It's kind of hard to get good balance up and down the lineup on a high school wrestling team. Usually, you have some weak areas."

There weren't many weak areas evident Wednesday against Alhoff. The Crusaders managed only two victories — and one of them was by their outstanding 128-pounder, Bob Herbert who defeated North freshman Mark Whitaker 20-1. "Mark takes his lumps at times," said Coach Whitaker, who's also Mark's father. "But he works hard. He'll be all right."

"I think I'm probably a little harder on him (Mark) than I am the rest of the kids," said the elder Whitaker. "He gets it at school and he gets it at home."

"But Alhoff's Hebert is one of the top 128-pounders in the area."

Colin Davis of North got the rout started for the Steelers at 98 pounds. He defeated Alhoff's Joe Williams 7-3. At 105 pounds, Greg Nemeth kept it going while he pinned Dave Bour 6 Alhoff in 5:37 of their 105 pound bout.

At 112 pounds, North's Dale Bowles defeated Guy

Douglass 9-1. At 119 pounds, Steve Smith of North won a 7-0 decision from Alhoff's Jim Williams.

Rodney Unger decided Alhoff's Don Lillis 10-0 in their 132 pound bout. At 145 pounds, Monte Kessler of North pinned Chris Zitta in 3:11.

At 145 pounds, Scott Corey pinned Alhoff's John Schmitt in 43 seconds — the quickest pin of the evening. Bob Patton made it three straight pins for the Steelers when he defeated Ed

Madison makes Dupo finals

DUPO — Madison's victory over Pattonville, Mo. here Wednesday night in the Dupo Tournament semifinals, puts the Trojans into the championship game Friday night against the winner of Thursday night's semifinal game between Columbia and Ritenour of St. Louis.

Ritenour and Columbia will play at 8 o'clock Thursday night. That game will be preceded by a consolation bracket game between St. Henry Prep of Belleville and Valmeyer at 6:30 p.m.

In other action Wednesday, Dupo defeated St. Henry 75-59 in a consolation basket contest. That victory by dupo puts the host Trojans into the consolation championship game Friday night at 8:30 against the winner of Wednesday's Valmeyer-St. Henry Prep game.

Pattonville will face the loser of the Thursday night Columbia-Ritenour game Friday at 7 p.m. for third place. The winner of Thursday's semifinal will meet Madison for the championship Friday at about 8:30 p.m.

Madison state title is top 1981 local sports story

By PETE HAYES
Sports Editor

GRANITE CITY — No doubt about the selection of the top local sports story the year just past was easy.

Madison High's Class 1A state basketball championship.

In fact, the championship season by the Trojans could be one of the top stories of the decade. Madison's basketball Trojans did just about everything humanly possible during the 1980-81 campaign. Not only did they capture their second state championship, but they defeated some pretty outstanding opposition along the way. Perhaps the biggest victory of the season was the state quarterfinal victory at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall over top-ranked Providence-New Lenox and the Celtics' All-America big-man, Walter Downing, who now plays as a freshman at DePaul.

What Trojan fan will ever forget the last-second court-length fast-break and the layup by Morris Hughes to propel the Trojans to their title? Madison defeated more than just Providence in that championship season. In fact, the Trojans defeated just about everybody they faced. Including the Class 2A schools. They won the prestigious Centralia Christmas Tournament (at the tail-end of 1980) and the Dupo Tournament. They beat Edwardsville and East St. Louis (twice), two of the best 2A teams in the state last season. In fact, East St. Louis went on to represent this area in the Class 2A state meet against Effingham.

team in Southern Illinois, regardless of enrollment. But as big as Madison's story was, it wasn't the only major sports story of 1981 to come out of this area.

Another major story concerned a state's championship that WASN'T won. The Granite City South Warriors failed to defend their state soccer championship in 1981. It marked the first time in five seasons that the Warriors did not greet the new year as reigning state champs.

That's because Collinsville upset the Warriors 1-0 on the Kahoks' tiny home field in the semifinals of the sectional tournament. South was coming off a thrilling overtime victory over arch-rival Granite City North in the South Sub-Sectional. It may have taken too much out of the Warriors.

But Collinsville represented the area well at the State Finals in Peoria. They brought home the state champion. (Continued on Page 22)

Steelers

GRANITE CITY — The successful campaign enjoyed by the Granite City North football team in 1981 was one of the top local sports stories of the year.

The Steelers won their first-ever Gateway East Conference championship, won the city championship and the Illinois State Playoffs with a 7-2 regular season record. They were defeated by Springfield Griffin in the first round of the Class 6A playoffs, but not before putting up a fight.

Along the way in 1981, the Steelers downed the teams they had to — the ones most pre-season forecasters said would be the ones to beat. They edged defending 4A state champion Belleville Althoff and they split a pair of games against arch-rival Edwardsville, the victory over the Tigers on the next-to-the-last season clinching the conference championship and a berth in the state playoffs — their second in the brief history of the school.

It was also a season of individual successes. Leading the way was junior all-everything Darren DeFew. All he did was kick eight field goals (one a state record 54-yarder), have the best punting average in the school's history, the best kickoff average, the most extra points. But that's just it: he is kicking records. He did more.

DeFew was a regular running back, a linebacker and the backup quarterback.

SPARTA — The pairings for the 18th annual Sparta Mid-Winter Classic baseball tournament have been released.

The Granite City North Steelers, making their first-ever appearance in the tournament, will face Red Bud in the first round, Wednesday, Jan. 20 at 8:30 p.m. That game will be preceded by the opening game of the tournament between DuQuoin and Trico.

Thursday, Jan. 21, the losers of Wednesday's games will meet at 6 p.m. That game will be followed by the first round game pitting Sparta against Lebanon at 7:30. Waterloo Senior will face Marissa at 9 p.m.

Friday, Jan. 22, the losers of Thursday's last two games will play at 6 p.m.

That game will be followed by a semifinal contest between the winners of Wednesday's games at 7:30. At 9 p.m., the winners of Wednesday's last two games will meet.

Saturday, Jan. 23, the consolation semifinals will be played at 4 p.m. At 5:30, the consolation finals will be played. The third-place game is scheduled for 7 p.m. with the championship game set for 8:30.

The tournament will be without last year's champion, O'Fallon.

Teams were not seeded in the tournament. However, tournament officials ranked the top four teams entered.

Granite City North, DuQuoin, Sparta and Marissa were tabbed the top entries in the meet.

Hearings on investment of state pension funds

Governor James R. Thompson announced Tuesday that the Illinois Study Commission on Public Pension Investment Policies has released its interim report, which calls for broadening the range of investments for state pension funds.

"I established this commission to look at how state pension funds are invested," Thompson said, "and how they might better be invested, particularly as a source of capital for economic investment."

"As the commission's interim report shows, there are prudent and realistic ways to improve the financial performance of the funds while, at the same time, strengthening the interests of beneficiaries and serving the economic development needs of the state of Illinois."

The governor, who appointed 28 members to the commission last March, also said public hearings will be held on the report this month in Marion, Springfield and Chicago.

The final report is to be submitted to the Governor in March.

The interim report notes that state pension funds, which total about $4.5 billion, have averaged market rates of return of approximately five percent over the past five years while pension funds across the nation have averaged 8.6 percent. The report states that this is due in large part to statutory restrictions on investment authority in Illinois.

The report also found that state economic and community development goals are a legitimate factor in considering investments for state pension funds.

The commission recommended that pension fund investment be subject to overall guidelines based on commonly recognized standards of prudence, rather than on specific investment restrictions.

The public hearings will be held at the Holiday Inn in Marion at 10 a.m. Jan. 25; at

Sleep--essential to good health

By MARY RICHARDS

Did you know that a good night's sleep is one of the essential elements in reducing your risk of illness? What is a good night's sleep? That's hard to define because it's not the same for everyone. Eight hours of sleep may be too much for some people but not enough for others. Normal amounts of sleep can vary from five to 10 hours a night. And there are even a few people who habitually get as little as two or three hours' sleep a night without harming their health.

You will know when you are getting a good night's sleep because you'll feel satisfied with the quantity and quality of sleep you are getting. Satisfied sleepers have regular sleep habits—they fall asleep and awaken at more or less the same time in each 24-hour period. Even with normal sleepers, the time between turning off the lights and falling asleep will vary from person to person. It usually takes from 10 to 30 minutes, although for some people, it may take an hour or more. The amount of sleep also varies from person to person and from age to age. A newborn will usually sleep about 16 hours a day, although it may not seem like that much to the parents. At age one, total sleep time decreases to about 13 hours. By young adulthood it's down to seven or eight hours. Most adults in the 30 to 50 age range, sleep seven-and-a-half to eight-and-a-half hours. The elderly sleep about six hours each night.

A person who occasionally has trouble sleeping is probably experiencing a natural response to some acute, temporary stress. If you sometimes have trouble sleeping, you should try doing things that are more relaxing during the two or three hours before bedtime.

Light reading, watching television—assuming you are not watching a horror show—pleasant conversation, or some light exercise will help you relax at the White House.

It's important that you not form the habit of taking a drink or a sleeping pill before bedtime. These drugs may very well interfere with getting a good night's sleep.

There are four stages of sleep and they are all necessary to good health. These stages repeat themselves about every 90 minutes. Stage one—"alpha sleep"—is the time when muscles relax and the pulse slows. This stage lasts about 10 minutes.

During the second stage, which lasts about half an hour, there is a burst of brainwave activity. In stage three, brain waves become slower, muscles relax and breathing is easy and even.

The sleeper then enters stage four, or "delta" sleep. This is the dreaming stage—the deepest sleep of all—and the most important stage as far as health is concerned. Sleeping pills or alcohol can suppress this important phase of sleep if they are taken for several weeks.

If you are deprived of delta sleep for a period of time, you may become depressed and apathetic. And if your dreams are suppressed by drugs, you may not only develop serious emotional problems but also increase your risk of physical illness.

For these reasons, the Illinois Department of Public Health advises against the use of sleeping pills or alcohol for inducing sleep on more than an occasional basis.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

1982 — Year of rough, exciting politics

By KEN WATSON

SPRINGFIELD — What kind of a year is 1982 going to be in Illinois?

Probably rough, tough, interesting, exciting, and maybe even a lot of fun! One thing it certainly is not going to be, and that is dull.

Political fireworks are assured in the race for governor between incumbent Republican James Thompson, 45, and former U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, 51, a Democrat. U.S. News and World Report, in a year-end preview of 1982 politics, said, "Analysts say it probably will be the hottest campaign among the 36 Statehouse races."

In addition to the Thompson-Stevenson struggle, the Illinois political picture has other unique features. The GOP race for lieutenant governor is a fascinating three-way contest involving House Speaker George Ryan and state Reps. Susan Catania and Donald Totten. Catania is attempting to make ERA a major campaign issue, and if this should result in her nomination, that in itself would be considered a development of national significance.

The Republican primary race for state treasurer will feature a comeback try by former House Speaker Robert Blair, often at odds with the Thompson administration. Opposing him will be John Dailey, a Peoria businessman, regarded as having Thompson's support.

Also hitting the comeback trail is another former member of the House, outspoken Calvin Skinner of Crystal Lake, who is seeking the nomination for comptroller with Thompson's backing. Also bidding for comptroller is Robert Ball, a Chicago businessman with important contacts with some influential Illinois Republicans. Statewide battles will be limited to the Republicans, since the Democrats, with some effort, have managed to head off any serious primary contests.

The election of House members will enter a new era in 1982. Membership of the House has been reduced from 177 to 118 members and cumulative voting has been abolished along with three-member districts. This means that single candidates will be nominated by each party in the new districts and that those nominated in March will battle head-to-head in the fall.

Then there is the big factor of reapportionment. Congressional and legislative districts have been scrambled to the point of utter confusion. Most congressional and legislative incumbents will be running in districts substantially changed from the past and many voters will be confronted with unfamiliar names on the ballot.

While the political show is rolling along, state government and the legislature will continue to grapple with persistent problems. The Thompson administration has the tough-and-go situation of keeping the state fiscally solvent. This challenge could become much more difficult if the current recession deepens during the first half of the year as some economists fear.

That will be watched with great interest from New York to San Francisco. The outcome will probably be close and the winner will unquestionably be Illinois' Man Of The Year. The prize will be instant recognition as a frontline contender for the White House, perhaps as soon as 1984.

But the Thompson-Stevenson struggle will dominate the Illinois big picture in 1982. It is certainly going to be a tough campaign and one

So, welcome 1982 — perhaps a year for history.

Proposals for some limited tax increases will no doubt be offered in the legislature. But because of the election, chances of passage of any tax increases are virtually nil. More cutbacks in state services and jobs appear likely.

Uncertainties will continue to cloud the mass transportation problem in the Chicago area. This continuing problem, along with that of funding the Chicago public schools, could well be back on legislative desks before summer drifts into fall.

The role played on the state governmental and political scene by Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne will be watched with keen interest. The mayor does not have to run until next year, but how she performs in 1982 could well determine her future political fate.

Political strategists will be watching to see how serious a role Byrne plays in the governor race. She is regarded as cool toward Stevenson, who has closer ties to Cook County State's Attorney Richard Daley, a likely Byrne foe in 1983.

But the Thompson-Stevenson struggle will dominate the Illinois big picture in 1982. It is certainly going to be a tough campaign and one

New state law to help recover loans

SPRINGFIELD — Illinoisans who received student loans for a college education but have not been repaying the money may soon be feeling the reach of the law.

Attorney General Ty Fehner says that a new law that became effective on the first of the year will now give him the tools necessary to recover at least $5 million in defaulted student loans.

Some individuals have been bypassing the repayment of their loans by filing for bankruptcy. Under the new law, unpaid educational loans cannot be forgiven under bankruptcy proceedings unless the loan had first become due five years before the filing of the bankruptcy.

The new law also provides that an individual may have the loan forgiven if the repayment would provide an undue hardship on the individual or the individual's dependents.

"We believe that thousands of people have filed under Chapter 13 (bankruptcy proceedings) only to get out of student loans," Fehner said. "This is unfair to others who are paying back 100 percent."

When the measure was passed by the General Assembly, supporters said the new law was needed to help get money back for the State Scholarship Commission, which handles the funds.

He'd be busy as lieutenant governor

By KEN WATSON

SPRINGFIELD — To House Speaker George Ryan, there is no question as to the major assignment of the lieutenant governor of Illinois. It is to be ready to step in as governor should that office be vacated for one reason or another.

It's my contention that the framers of the constitution had one purpose in mind for the lieutenant governor's office," Ryan said in an interview. "It was that whoever sat in that office should be prepared at all times to assume the governor's office."

Ryan, who heads a pharmacy business in Kankakee, is basing his campaign for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor on the premise that he is the best qualified of three contenders to serve as governor should that occasion arise. One of his specific arguments is his endorsement by Gov. James Thompson.

"If Jim Thompson hadn't endorsed my candidacy, I wouldn't be a candidate," Ryan said. "I would not want to be the lieutenant governor if he didn't want me. And I think that for the workings of those two offices that's important."

Ryan has the backing of the past two Republican governors, William Stratton and Richard Ogilvie, who are serving as co-chairmen of his campaign.

Like the other two candidates for the office, state Reps. Donald Totten, 48, and Susan Catania, 40, Ryan is saddled with the embarrassment that the last Republican lieutenant governor, Dave O'Neal, quit the office, complaining that there wasn't enough to do. Here's how Ryan handles the inevitable question.

"I generally say that for whatever reason he resigned, it must have been his own personal reasons. He didn't discuss it with me. It did take him five years to realize there wasn't anything to do in that office so I really don't go into a whole lot of other things...I say for myself that I've had six years in leadership — four years as minority leader and two years as speaker. And I think that experience from working on a daily basis on statewide problems is probably a valuable thing to have to be a lieutenant governor."

sees himself as a busy lieutenant governor.

"The day-to-day operation is to work within the confines of the administration to work with the budget, to work with the General Assembly, to work with the cabinet to solve the problems that come before the governor's office every day...something we could do besides the statutory requirement is to work in business and economic development. I want to go out and solicit new business, to broaden our economic base. That's what I'm going to target into pretty much."

IRA at a glance

By JIMMY THORNTON

Following is the Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at a glance.

An individual may set aside up to $2,000 a year and defer paying federal income tax on the money until retirement.

A working couple may deposit up to $4,000 a year. Some married couples will qualify for a Spousal IRA (completely revised for 1982) whereby they may set aside up to $2,500 a year.

Ideally, you should put the full sum into an account at the beginning of the year so it will earn interest. The interest is plowed back into the account, so you don't pay taxes on it.

People 70½ years of age in 1982 are not eligible.

Workers aged 70½ also are not eligible. You may wait until age 65 to start withdrawing funds, at which time they are subject to federal taxation. Or you may begin tapping the fund at age 59½.

State taxes do not exempt IRA funds. There are early withdrawal and tax penalties if you close the account before retirement.

Filing for a tax exemption is simple. Simply enter

Beneath the Statehouse Dome Ryan, primarily because of his contacts with the legislature and regular Republicans, rates somewhat as a favorite. But he can hardly be accused of overconfidence.

"I think it's a three-way race," Ryan says. "I've never discounted anybody that's on the ticket and never will. Anytime you're in one of these kinds of battles, anybody who gets on the ticket is important and both of my opponents are very formidable people. Susan Catania is a knowledgeable, formidable gal, as is Don Totten. I have a lot of respect for both of them."

One of the intangible issues of the race is the Equal Rights Amendment. Catania is strongly for it while Ryan and Totten have long records of opposition. Ryan discounts the importance of ERA as an issue and disputes Catania's prediction that it will attract a sizeable cross-over Democratic vote for her. The Democrats have no major statewide primary contests.

"I think the ERA amendment is dead except for the politics that will be played with it by Susan Catania," he says. "Crossovers? I can't understand why that would be because we're talking about a primary race that ends in March. ERA has life until the end of the (legislative) session in July. So a vote for Catania on the Equal Rights Amendment — for any hope of making it pass — would have no bearing, none at all."

Looking beyond the primary, Ryan sees a tough fall battle against the Democrats. He feels that the fate of the state ticket may be linked to voters' acceptance or rejection of the Reagan economic policies and new federalism.

"We as Republicans have to hope the administration's program works, that the recession ends, that inflation comes down, that business picks up, and that the economy is in better shape than it is now. If that happens we'll be in pretty good shape as Republicans. If that doesn't happen and the reverse takes place, then I think we have problems."

Like Thompson, Ryan feels that Reagan's new federalism is here to stay and that there will be no turning back.

"A year ago the people of this country decided they wanted to take a turn in the road that they'd been on and we've taken a pretty drastic turn. We've seen things in federal government that we didn't think would ever happen. Less government, less taxes and evidently that's what the people wanted. We didn't think Reagan said he would give them that and they elected Reagan."

"Now we're going to have to live with those kinds of programs that we asked for. And I think that although it will be difficult we will be able to adjust to it."

This is the mattress designed by professionals who understand the design of the human body — the Posture Committee of the International Chiropractors Association. The critical center 1/3 of the Spinal-Guard mattress has been specially reinforced with heavier coils. Your body stays in a firm, level sleeping position all night long. You wake rested and Spinal-Guard could relieve the discomfort of a backache caused by sleeping on a saggy mattress.
